ATLANTIC SHIP RESCUES LIVERPOOL PLANE

EMPIRE DAY IS USHERED IN BY PARADE TO PARK

Lieutenant-Governor Hon. R. Randolph Bruce Reviews
Parade at Beacon Hill; Crowds See Towboat and Yacht Races; Willows Gala Has Attractive Programme for This Afternoon; Mystery Man Eludes Pursuit

Victorians and visitors to-day thronged the downtown district to see the picturesque parade which opened the May 24 programme in commemoration of Victoria Day. The streets were lined with spectators to watch the procession, which started at 10 a.m. at Yates and Cook Streets, led by Capt. M. F. McIntosh, M.C., of the Princess Patricia's Canadian Light Infantry. The parade proceeded west on Yates Street to the business section, winding its way through downtown blocks to Beacon Hill Park, where it passed in review before His Honor, the Lieutenant-Governor.

The Parade of the Flowers, the feature of Victoria and District Schools in other years, was missing this year, due to the fact that the children are to take part in the Diamond Jubilee plans and could not secure time to prepare for two festivities.

After the parade crowds watched the tugboat race off Beacon Hill, and saw the finish of the yacht race staged through the co-operation of the Royal Victoria Yacht Club. The water events provided considerable entertainment, and were witnessed by large numbers of people, who lined the shores at Dallas Road from Horseshoe Bay to the Breakwater.

Busy in the crowd were the judges for the fashion contest, Miss Miller, of the Milton Company, and D. Horton, of the Ladies' Aid. The water events provided considerable entertainment, and were witnessed by large numbers of people, who lined the shores at Dallas Road from Horseshoe Bay to the Breakwater.

"ARE YOU THE MYSTERY MAN?"
The crowds gave the Mystery Man a close chase this morning, while not a little merriment was created by the general repetition of the challenge by paper-carrying participants in the man-hunt. If not detected in the crowds to-day the Mystery Man will attend at downtown stores to-morrow, and will exhibit himself at a fixed place in time to-morrow.

Last night the Mystery Man stopped on the curb to help an elderly lady across the street, and drew the attention of a Times newsboy who had been watching him for several blocks. The boy, however, had his last paper, and though he was within reach of the treasure did not have the necessary paper to support his claim. News-stands sold out last night, as those joining in the man-hunt secured a copy of The Times or The Colonist wherever to pursue their search.

A broken shoelace saved the Mystery Man from detection at the hands of a group of young ladies, one of whom was on the point of interrogating him when he bent to tie the lace. Though he waited for the "revelation" it was not put, and so another group lost an opportunity of securing the hundred pieces of silver. The Mystery Man closed his day by taking a match from a pedestrian on the street and chatting with the stranger for some minutes about the man-hunt and other affairs.

IN THE CROWD
To-day the Mystery Man was up early and about. He witnessed the parade, attended the crowds at Beacon Hill, watched the regatta, and lunched in town. Later he went to the Willows, where the feature sports programme of the day is being presented. To-night the Mystery Man will attend Yates and Blanshard Street galas, and will take in the dancing.

Crowds attending the Willows this afternoon will see a novel programme, much of which has never before been attempted here. The programme of novelty races will form a lively feature, with "surf board" riding on planks behind racing motorcycles, "tilting the bucket" at full speed, side-car relays in which the driver will pick up four passengers before crossing the finishing line, and other novelties. The last motor cycle event will be a serpentine obstacle race which few entries are expected to complete. A band will be in attendance at the all-feature programme starting at 2:30 p.m. and continuing until 5:30 p.m. Horse racing and machine gun competitions will also prove lively events.

THE PERFECT MAN
During the afternoon judging will be attempted in the Perfect Man contest, with the assistance of those who took part in the famous physical culture contests promoted by Eugene Sandow in London. One entrant taking part to-day was a prize winner in a contest judged by Sir Arthur Conan Doyle, Sir Charles Lawes and Eugene Sandow some years ago, and is pitted against a keen list of entries from local and mainland sources. The winners and the runners-up in the contest will be introduced to-night, if possible, to the crowds attending the street games.

The evening programme gets under way at 7 o'clock when the Victoria Junior Roller Hockey champions will play a glitzy team from the senior division. The midweek football men six feet in height but are confident that they will win.

RACES ON THE STREET
Novelty roller races will be staged on Blanshard Street after the games, including a wheelbarrow race in which the "barrows" will wear skates on their hands and be pushed by the "wheels."

For the first time attempted locally a tug-of-war contest on skates will be staged, and from the advance notice of those practicing for the event, the result is lively for players and public alike.

At 8 o'clock to-night the scene will shift to Yates Street, where the Mystery Man hunt—Mr. Right will visit all the various events.

Fashion parade—During the day a committee will pick out the three best dressed ladies (sports attire), three most correctly dressed men and three cuttiest dressed little girls. Committee will award three prizes, donated by merchants for each class. Judges, Miss Miller and D. Horton.

panions Plan Flight For Observation Purposes

Preparations For Hop-off of Triple Motored Monoplane
Are Made

New York, May 24.—A flight to Paris from New York "for the purpose of scientific and practical observation" will be made by Commander Richard E. Byrd and Grover A. Whalen, vice-president of the Trans-Oceanic Company, which owns the plane, said in a joint statement to-day that the successful flight from New York to Paris by Capt. Charles A. Lindbergh had occasioned no change in their plans.

The North Pole flier is continuing his preparations to hop off from Roosevelt Field, L.I., in the triple motored Fokker monoplane with Lieut. George E. Novelle and Bert Acosta. Byrd has tentatively figured on starting some time this week.

BRITISH AIRMAN IS MAKING FLIGHT TO AUSTRALIA

Croydon, Eng., May 24.—With a spare propeller strapped beneath the fuselage of his two-seater Moth aeroplane, Dennis Rook, a comparatively unknown aviator, hopped off here to-day on a lone flight to Australia. His plane developed about thirty hours.

Rook intends to make the flight to Australia by easy stages, following the course taken by Sir Alan Cobham on his memorable trip.

shift to Yates Street where vaudeville turns and a swiftly moving programme will be put on on a raised platform. Miss Mona Jewell has arranged a series of dancing exhibitions including Spanish and other national dances by her pupils. Novelty features and comedy will close the entertainment on Yates Street.

Wednesday has been mapped out as Kiddies Day in the three-day plans prepared by the committee, with a bonfire and roast potato feast at Pinlayson point, followed by fireworks and band concerts. The whole crown of the hill will be illuminated while as the result of public subscription an excellent variety of fireworks is on hand for the evening.

Volunteers are required for the assembly of a pyre for the bonfire. After 8 o'clock to-morrow there will be some in charge at Pinlayson Point to assist in the preparation of the bonfire of drift wood for the blaze. The committee has been given a present of several sacks of potatoes to roast for the kiddies and is to-day looking for other donations by way of candy or other eatables that will help to make the day one that the children will remember.

For the success of the arrangements this year is due to the general committee which managed the affair, and its sub-committees. Assisting in this under the direction of Alderman John Harvey, chairman of the executive, were: E. C. Smith, W. H. Davies, J. T. Braden, J. S. McMillan, G. A. Dyson, E. C. B. Pagshaw, M. F. Hunter, W. E. Lorimer, H. S. Stevenson, W. H. Mearns, Col. Lorne Ross, D. Horton, George Allison, J. L. McIntosh, James Cameron, George Jones, Miss L. Bow-ell, Miss Bruce, C. H. FAILS TO COMPLETE ATLANTIC FLIGHT; PINEDO SEAPLANE SANTA MARIA II

SOVIET AGENTS ARE ASKED TO LEAVE LONDON

London, May 24.—Premier Baldwin told the House of Commons to-day Great Britain would terminate her trade agreement with Russia on Thursday and require withdrawal of the Trade Delegation and the Soviet Mission from London unless the House should express disapproval of this course.

The Premier added the British Government, if the House approved, would recall its mission from Moscow.

Premier Baldwin stated the legitimate use of force was not affected by the Government's decision and that the Government was prepared, while terminating the privileges conferred by certain articles of the trade agreement, to make all the arrangements necessary for ordinary trade facilities between the two countries.

AGENTS AT WORK
The Premier said that from information received and evidence obtained as a result of investigations, it had become increasingly difficult to resist the conclusion that the agents were working in behalf of the Soviet Government on behalf of which this banishment of members of the Russian Trade Delegation, who were working at Soviet House, and who arranged for the conveyance to Moscow of photographs or copies of the documents obtained.

JAIL SENTENCE GIVEN
Premier Baldwin continued that these suspicions were confirmed when early this year a British subject, employed by the Air Force, was convicted of stealing two such documents. These documents were recovered and the individual was now undergoing imprisonment. The identity of the secret organization on behalf of which this man had obtained the documents and its connection with Russian organization had been established.

DOCUMENT TRACED
The Premier said further that a document of official and highly confidential character, and so marked, recently had been found to be missing and from information and documents.

HEAPS OF DEBRIS Cleared From Field At Le Bourget

Paris, May 24.—A pair of trousers, hundreds of hats, women's and men's coats, handbags and odd shoes have been gathered by the army of workmen clearing the Le Bourget flying field. Squads of gardeners were at work to-day replacing shrubs and flower beds trampled or torn up by the enthusiastic crowds that swamped over the field when Lindbergh landed in his seaplane from New York Saturday night, while mechanics were putting in a new fence to replace the one flattened by the eager mob.

About fifty persons were more or less hurt in the crush. A few policemen and soldiers also were injured while rescuing the plane from the fury of souvenir searchers.

LINDBERGH IS TO VISIT BRUSSELS

New York-Paris Aviator to be Honored in Belgian Capital

Brussels, May 24.—As in Paris, the United States Embassy here will take charge of Capt. Charles A. Lindbergh when he lands here Saturday on his flight from Paris.

James C. Dunn, United States Charge d'Affaires, was engaged to-day in making arrangements for the visit and the American Club was planning a big banquet in his honor.

KING INTERESTED
It is believed almost certain King Albert will wish to see the daring aviator from overseas as soon as he arrives, for being a veteran flier and a man of scientific tastes, he has shown a special interest in everything pertaining to Lindbergh and his remarkable flight. The King was one of the first in Brussels to ask Mr. Dunn to send his personal congratulations.

A number of other ceremonies to honor the American only await official announcement of his visit to take shape.

LINDBERGH TO CROSS OCEAN IN NAVAL SHIP

Destroyer Placed at Famous Aviator's Disposal by United States Government

His New York-Paris Aero-plane to be Returned to the United States

Washington, May 24.—A United States destroyer was placed to-day at the command of Capt. Charles A. Lindbergh, New York-Paris flier, for his return to this country. The Navy Department directed Commander W. W. Galbraith, of Destroyer Division No. 22, which is now in European waters, to offer the services of the vessel for Lindbergh's return.

Accommodations will be also offered for the return here of Lindbergh's plane, "The Spirit of St. Louis."

The navy's action was taken after a conference at the White House to-day between President Coolidge and Acting Secretary Robinson.

YEARS REPORTERS
Paris, May 24.—Captain Charles A. Lindbergh, New York-Paris aviator, now being housed in Paris, has no fear of risking his life in making serial history, but he looks forward with trepidation to facing the ship news reporters and camera men in New York on his return to the United States.

For this reason, according to several persons who have been able to get him to unobscure himself, he plans to remain in Europe until about the middle of June to get a much needed brief vacation, after attending the fetes in his honor.

"I sure want to get rested up," he is quoted as saying.

"I am scared stiff of what those New Yorkers will do to me."

Capt. Lindbergh was so timid about finding his way around Paris that he fore he left New York, Col. Theodore Roosevelt gave him six letters of introduction to carry to this city.

MANY OFFERS
A line-up of motion picture representatives and theatrical promoters has been waiting outside the United States Embassy here in an endeavor to interview Lindbergh, all talking in large words.

Figures at the Aero Club of France show Lindbergh not only the first man to make an uninterrupted flight across the Atlantic, but also the man who holds the long distance non-stop record, 3,647 miles.

Lindbergh was received in the Palace by President Doumergue and the name of France with the Cross of the Legion of Honor.

Lindbergh also was unanimously named as "Honorary Citizen of the Superior Normal School, the highest institution of learning in France, at yesterday's session of the governing board. He will be presented with a diploma at a ceremony yet to be arranged.

DAY OF GLORY
Yesterday was a day of glory for the modest boy. The Aero Club of France conferred its Great Gold Medal on him yesterday afternoon. Premier Poincaré received him immediately afterward.

Lindbergh was still dressed in ill-fitting clothes, the tailors and shirt-makers still being busy supplying the wardrobe which he left behind in favor of more fuel for his beloved plane, but the President of France pinned the cross on his breast as though he were arrayed in splendor and then swept him into his arms and kissed him on both cheeks.

MOTHER REMEMBERED
"Slim" was moved—even more so when the President presented through him the compliments of himself and of all France to the flier's mother—back in Detroit. The birdman's eyes were moist as, accompanied by President Doumergue, Myron T. Herrick, United States Ambassador, and others, he was escorted to the Gardens of the Palace, where the cameramen awaited to record the historic incident.

Crowds gathered at the United States Embassy, his temporary home, and at every point where he might possibly appear, and vendors along the boulevards shouted two new songs written overnight in his honor. Copies went rapidly at one franc each. The words of one song are set to a well-known French air.

Ambassadors and other notables called to see him and messages continued to pour in from all parts of the globe.

Charge of Murder Heard in London

London, May 24.—John Robinson, forty-six-year-old clerk, appeared in the Westminster police court to-day charged with the murder of Mrs. Minnie Bonatti, wife of an Italian waiter, whose dismembered body was found in a trunk at Charing Cross Station, in the heart of London, two weeks ago. The only evidence was given by the detective inspector, who made the arrest. He testified that in the course of a statement to the police Robinson said: "I met the woman at Victoria Square and took her up to my offices. I do not know her name, and I do not know her name."

PINEDO FLIERS ARE SAFE AFTER PLANE FAILURE

Seaplane, Bound From Newfoundland, Forced Down on Atlantic 250 Miles West of Azores, Is Being Towed to Islands by Ship; Pinedo and Companions Escaped Injury When Flight Ended

Lisbon, May 24.—A radio message received directly from Commander Francisco de Pinedo here to-day stated his seaplane was being towed to the Azores and that he needed no further assistance. The commander and his companions suffered no injuries in the descent of his plane to the sea.

New York, May 24.—The Radio Corporation of America this afternoon announced the receipt of a radiogram which originated with the steamship Cobturus and was relayed by the liner Leviathan, reading:

"Sailing vessel Infanta Vesgrea, bound southeast, towing Italian hydro-aeroplane, Santa Maria II. All well."

The position of the steamer was given as latitude 41.25 north and longitude 32.28 west when the message was filed at 12.50 Eastern standard time.

BIG STAFF WORKS ON LINDBERGH'S MAIL

Squadron of Cavalry Keeps Streets Open in Paris as He Passes

Paris, May 24.—A short glimpse into the mass of letters and telegrams that had accumulated since he brought his New York seaplane down on the flying field at Le Bourget and the sight of a squadron of cavalry called out to help the police keep open the streets through which he passed to-day gave Captain Charles A. Lindbergh a better outlook than he had thus far of the arduous future before him as a world hero.

United States Ambassador Herrick's famous unexpected guest gave up the correspondence as a hopeless task and took advantage of the Ambassador's offer to turn the letters and messages over to the Embassy for proper classification and replies. The Ambassador's staff, however, was not equal to such a big task, and Lindbergh finally called upon the Bankers' Trust Company.

"The boy," as everybody familiarly calls him, was obviously more at ease to-day in clothes of his own, turned out in a tuxedo, than he had been since his spectacular arrival from New York. He had been wearing borrowed plumage, loaned to him by Parnette Herrick, the Ambassador's son.

Lindbergh faced his first ordeal of the day, a luncheon served by the American Club of Paris, with composure. After getting into the dining hall, he was obliged to go out and show himself, to prevent damage to the front of the building by enthusiastic masses of reporters and photographers.

Insistent calls to the balcony and a push which resulted in an ominous crash of glass decided the organizers of the luncheon to comply with the wishes of the crowd. Lindbergh went to the balcony.

Facing the workmen and hearing their cheers, he brushed again as he did yesterday when President Doumergue pinned the Cross of the Legion of Honor on his breast, and as he did once more to-day, a few minutes later, when the one-armed World War veteran, General Gouraud, kissed him on both cheeks.

GREETED BY COOKS
Lindbergh had to go through the kitchens and basement of the Hotel Ambassador, where the luncheon was given, to get up to the balcony. On the way he was forced to stop and shake hands with the cooks and scullery boys who abandoned their pots and kettles to give him one of the most spontaneous greetings he has ever received.

Those who could reach him patted him, kissed his hands or gave vent to their feelings in any way that presented itself. Lindbergh looked out through the window of the balcony with a French flag in his hand, and the street roared with cheers.

"Midnight," or shopgirls, from all the dressmaking and millinery establishments in the centre of Paris, massed on the opposite side of the street, were less favored than the cooks and scullery boys, having to content themselves with throwing him kisses across the street.

APPLAUDED AT LUNCHEON
Lindbergh showed he was especially pleased by the demonstration of the maids, carpenters and shopgirls, but he stepped back through the window and heaved a sigh of relief, as though to say, "Well, this sort of thing is through with." He had only reached his seat in the banquet hall when a wave of applause, beginning at the (Continued on page 2)

Redding, Cal., May 24.—C. C. Julian of Los Angeles, former head of the Petroleum Corporation, arrived here late last night by aeroplane with Russell Boardman of Los Angeles.

The landing gear on the plane was broken, and as the machine dropped into the Redding landing field it nosed over, breaking the propeller. Both Julian and Boardman escaped unhurt.

Ferryboat Master Blamed For Crash

San Francisco, May 24.—Blame for the crash in San Francisco Bay on the night of April 24, in which the steamer Newport rammed and sank the ferryboat Golden City, was placed upon Capt. A. Johnson of the Golden City to-day.

Federal steamship inspectors who conducted the investigation of the crash submitted the ruling holding Capt. Johnson responsible on the ground that he violated a steamship law by running his craft full speed in a fog.

Capt. Sverre Rustad of the Newport was exonerated of all blame. He was not mentioned in the ruling.

Manila, May 24.—The Manila Times says officials of the American Chamber of Commerce here are considering underwriting an aeroplane flight from San Francisco to Manila by way of Honolulu. The Honolulu Chamber of Commerce would also back the venture.

tary evidence it had become clear it had been conveyed to Soviet House and there reproduced by a photostatic process.

CLEARING HOUSE

Previous to the police raid on Arcos House in London, the Premier said, an application for a search warrant was made as a result of the information that had been gathered. He charged that Arcos House, generally known as Soviet House, and the Russian Trade Delegation headquarters had habitually used as a clearing house for subversive correspondence, including a hands-off China campaign.

MILITARY SPYING

The Premier declared that both military espionage and subversive activities throughout the Empire, as well as in North and South America had been directed and carried out from Soviet House. No differentiation between the trade delegation and Arcos House, in the same building, had been observed and both organizations had been involved in anti-British espionage propaganda.

LIST OF ADDRESSES

In alluding to the list of addresses discovered as "secret cover" addresses, Premier Baldwin explained that they showed means of communicating with the communist parties in the United States, Mexico, South America, Canada, Australia, New Zealand and South Africa.

Dear Sirs:—For over three years I had neuritis in my hands so badly I was unable to close my fingers without great pain and effort, my suffering was terrible. After two weeks' treatment I felt great relief, and now after a month the neuritis is almost gone, the stiffness and pain is greatly relieved. In fact, I feel like a different woman and am able to do the ordinary household tasks without any trouble. My blood pressure has also been reduced considerably and my whole system is toned up. I can only speak in the highest terms of the I-ON-A-CO treatment and would advise anyone who is suffering to try your treatment and get relief. CARILLON ARRIVES IN FEDERAL CAPITAL

Ottawa, May 24.—Twenty-nine bells of all sizes, including the largest, that will form the carillon to be installed in the Victory Tower on the Parliament Buildings, arrived here yesterday. The first to reach Parliament Hill was the second largest, weighing some nine tons. The task of unloading is taking two days for this consignment. There are still twenty-four more bells to come, making up a total of fifty-three to form the carillon.

The inscription on the largest bell which is more than seven feet in height and weighs eleven tons, states: "This carillon was installed by authority of Parliament to commemorate the peace of 1918 and to keep in remembrance the service and sacrifice of Canadians in the Great War."

Many children, however, did take part in costume and comedy characters, and helped to enhance the gay spectacle ever attendant on a street parade. The presence of naval and military contingents lent a touch of color to the procession, which was served by several bands. Decorated floats were less numerous than in other years, but those that did enter received an ovation from the crowd. Decorated cars and bicycles lent a touch of carnival days to the scene.

Sergeant Davies, late of the 7th Hussars, marched as standard bearer at the head of the parade, the first units of which were smart detachments from the Royal Canadian Navy, and the Sea Cadets of the Navy League of Canada.

A detachment from Princess Patricia's Canadian Light Infantry followed, a trim khaki reminder of war years. Militia and cadet units completed the first section of the procession.

SCOUTS AND CBES

The Boy Scout movement was represented by a fine turn out of Victoria and district troops and wolf cub packs, the boys creating favorable comment for the orderly way in which they marched.

The Queen Victoria carriage, in which Mrs. Latham represented the monarch of beloved memory, was warmly greeted as it passed through the streets in the procession. Adults and children in the costume section of the parade provided a gay spectacle, as fancy dress and comedy characters followed in the parade. Bands and marching units followed in the parade, including the Victoria Junior Pipe Band, and the Victoria Junior Pipe Band.

Six bands helped to carry the marching contingents along with a swing, those taking part including the bands of the Victoria Junior Pipe Band, the Victoria Junior Pipe Band, and the Victoria Junior Pipe Band.

Organizations and fraternal societies with floats and costumed characters contributed a number of excellent features to the parade.

Singing Tobacco-Grower to Feature Festival

1. Chateau Frontenac, Quebec, where Festival will be held. 2. Vincent Ferrier de Repentigny. 3. Madame de Repentigny. 4. One of the handicrafts of Old Quebec.

For more than three-score years Vincent Ferrier de Repentigny has been singing. He sings in the morning while he is dressing, he sings while he works, he sings in the evening when he is sitting in the rocking chair by the kitchen stove. In fact, Madame de Repentigny asserts that it is not unusual for her good man to sing in his sleep.

Vincent Ferrier de Repentigny, by the way, is one of the best known interpreters of the French Canadian folksong. He has the largest repertoire—387 songs, some dating back to the sixteenth and seventeenth century, when they were sung in the courts of France and by the fisher folk on the shores of Brittany. Most of these melodies de Repentigny learned from the lips of his mother, who remembered them herself as she sang them at the spinning wheel in the little farmhouse at St. Timothee where de Repentigny spent his youth. Other he learned from the shanty men during the winters he spent in the "woods"—good rollicking songs that were sung hundreds of years ago by the "voyageurs" who explored Canada's rivers and forests in the early days.

De Repentigny comes of a family which stood high at the Court of the French Kings in the 17th century and is a descendant of the famous Madame de Repentigny who was really responsible for the introduction of handicrafts into Canada. When in 1805 the French vessel "La Seine" carrying the annual cargo of Paris frocks for the Ladies of Quebec was captured in the high seas by the British, and these ladies saw themselves faced by the prospect of isolation for an indefinite time from the supply of new clothes, Madame de Repentigny, the social leader of the time, set the farmers at once to the sewing of flax and the breeding of sheep, and the women to the spinning of thread and the weaving of cloth.

De Repentigny is still as much in demand at social affairs as he was thirty or forty years ago. He is well-known to the French population of the Province, and almost as well to the English. He will leave his farm in Beaucharnois county long enough to take part in the Canadian Handicraft and Folksong Festival which is being held at the Chateau Frontenac in Quebec from May 20 to 22.

De Repentigny began life as a farmer and intends to spend the remainder of his days growing "tabac Canadien", but he has tried his hands at many trades. He has spent several winters in the bush; for some time he was captain of a great lakes freighter; he has been a tailor, and is still the proprietor of a restaurant in Rosemount. Yet he is a true "habitant" and there is nothing that appeals to him so much as a cosy little farm house somewhere in his native county, and a few good acres of healthy tobacco.

This big-hearted jolly fellow who has a smile and a handshake for everyone carries his sixty-nine year lightly. His voice is as strong as it was when he was a young man; his step as light. De Repentigny's grandfather lived to the great age of 108, his father was hale and hearty at ninety, and De Repentigny himself expects to sing all of his 387 songs many times over, and grow many pounds of good tabac, before he joins his illustrious forefathers.

Fungus Diseases of the Skin—Their Cause and Cure

Certain diseases of the skin are caused by a mold that is passed from one person to another, much the same way that germs are passed. Some of the worst cases were seen during the war in women who were constantly passing worsted thread between the fingers while knitting. In other instances the eruption appeared between the thighs when tight-fitting woolen bathing suits were worn. The spaces between the toes were infected through the wearing of woolen socks.

Infection has also been found in association with the use of leather goods, including baseballs, gloves, driving reins, the handles of golf clubs, trusses, straps of wrist watches and shoes worn without stockings.

Among the most prolific sources of infection were found to be athletic clothes, which are worn while the person perspires freely and which are not frequently washed. In one instance a woman who was particularly about her silk underwear kept it to be washed at home during a trip to Bermuda. It was left in the hamper for a period of weeks, and washed when brought home. Apparently the washing was not sufficient to destroy the organism. The woman developed a severe infection with the mold.

It is also generally believed that the floors of shower baths carry the infection. Dr. C. J. White of Boston describes six cases seen among the boys in a boarding school and the infection of twenty-three members of one golf club.

The condition usually appears as a red eruption between the thighs, between the toes, or between the fingers, sometimes scaling and sometimes with cracks and fissures. Occasionally there is mild itching and blistering. In the prevention of the condition, Dr. White suggests that the patient be warned against contact with leather or woolen objects of dress, toilet and sport. He must be told not to wear wool or leather next to the skin. He must allow only boiled materials to touch him.

Articles which have come in contact with the infection should be used once and then boiled separately from the rest of the household linen, and finally hung inside-out in the sun for a whole day. Shower baths should not be taken, unless the affected feet are covered with cotton stockings. The use of paper towels, running water and liquid soap should be encouraged, and the infected areas should be kept cool.

The treatment of the condition with drugs involves the use of complicated prescriptions, which are changed from time to time, according to the state of the disease.

FARRIS TO START

Vancouver, May 24.—J. W. deB. Farris, K.C., will leave June 2 for London to argue before the Privy Council the British Columbia Government's appeal against various decisions holding the provincial fuel oil tax to be unconstitutional.

This tax, which was estimated to yield about $400,000 a year, was passed by the Legislature three years ago, and there is already a million dollars of provincial revenue at stake in the case.

The Canadian case is to come before the Privy Council during the latter half of June.

C. IBANEZ IS NEW PRESIDENT OF CHILE

Cabinet Resigns as Matter of Form Following Election

Santiago, Chile, May 24.—The Chilean Cabinet tendered its resignation yesterday. This is considered a mere formality customary on the election of a new President of the republic. Carlos Ibanez was elected President of Chile in the elections held yesterday. He polled 222,150 votes. A total of 230,211 ballots were cast.

General Ibanez has been in the Chilean political light for some time past as the leader of the army faction dissatisfied with the business of state as carried on by the constitutional authorities. He virtually forced the resignation of President Emilio Figueroa-Larraz, who pleaded ill-health after being given a leave of absence.

Haselton, B.C., May 24.—An interesting collection of carrier, Indian birch baskets and trays bearing ancient geometric and symbolic designs was forwarded from here to Prof. Frank G. Speck of the Anthropological Department of the University of Pennsylvania at Philadelphia.

Professor Speck is a specialist in Indian art, particularly that of Canada, and it is for this study that he has purchased this collection. He also will use them for classroom instruction.

Incidentally this shipment has served to stimulate interest in such Indian art and to spur the Indian women to keep alive the decorative arts for which they have long been famous.

LODGE AT JASPER PARK IS OPENED

Summer Tourist Season
Officially Begins in Canadian Rockies

Jasper, Alta., May 24.—With the opening of Jasper Park Lodge Saturday, the summer tourist season in the Canadian Rockies was officially begun and indications are that Jubilee Year will be one of the heaviest tourist seasons in the history of Jasper Park.

Since last year extensive improvements have been made by the Canadian National Railways to their terminal and hotel facilities here, while the Parks Department have made some important additions to trail and motor routes of the latter the most important is the extension of Mount Edith Cavell motor road, which now ends at the Glacier of the Angels. Mileage has also been added to the Poonahans motor road, which is noted for the number of wild animals that are to be seen along the route, as much as for its scenic qualities. Moose, deer, bear, sheep and goat have been found in large numbers along this driveway all Spring. At Jasper Park Lodge much work has been done, an addition to the main building exactly doubles the size of the rotunda and provision has also been made for twenty-five more rooms. A new and much larger ballroom has been constructed and as this has direct connection with the kitchen, it can also be used for conventions and banquets. The golf course is in excellent shape; work on the greens having been commenced early in the Spring. Registrations at the lodge on opening day exceeded fifty, the largest number on any opening day in the history of the hotel.

CAMPAIGN AGAINST GAMBLING URGED

Vancouver, May 24.—"We need to show the youth of Vancouver the advantage of the church and take away the sordidness," said Rev. J. Richmond Craig in making an appeal for action on the part of ministers in fighting the gambling evil, before the British Columbia Conference of the United Church here yesterday. He asked for the church to set the example to all people in this direction.

"As pastor of the downtown part of the city I am of the firm belief much of the poverty is due to the ever increasing amount of gambling," Mr. Craig declared. "I can personally name forty families who are financially embarrassed as a result of gambling."

In all parts of the world, the speaker continued, the church was setting aside its best men to fight the spread of gambling. He said the "trade" of gambling had come to the city in the guise of "bookies." The vice, he stated, was festering because the "preaching and the actions of the pastors did not chime." The "safety first" idea among the people had been worked out, the speaker claimed. The desire for "thrill" was predominant, he declared, and stated it was the duty of the church to see the call of chance was counteracted.

On his recommendation the conference agreed to the inclusion of the word "example."

TWO MEN WERE TREED BY BEAR

Yakima, May 24.—Treed by a bear, not once, but three times, and having to climb trees while burdened with snowshoes, were the high lights of a Sunday hike on the south fork of the Tiston River undertaken by Clarence Truitt and Harold Conklin. Twice, when the men tried to escape after bruin apparently had gone away, the bear returned with a rush and once was able to climb quite close to Conklin, who went to the tip of the tree, which swayed back and forth as the bear climbed after him, only to slip down with paw outstretched in a final reach for the intended victim.

The men finally outwitted the bear.

ROBBERY IN INDIANA

Hammond, Ind., May 24.—Three masked and armed bandits in a large automobile forced the automobile of a woman messenger for the Maywood Trust Company to the curb here yesterday, grabbed a satchel containing $25,000 in currency and $1,200 in silver and escaped. The money was being transferred from the Citizens' National Bank to the Maywood institution.

LINDBERGH SET UP DISTANCE RECORD

Piloted Aeroplane 3,610 Miles
Between New York and Paris

Washington, May 24.—Charles A. Lindbergh was credited today with covering 3,610 miles, or 5,809.7 kilometres, on his New York-to-Paris flight by the Geological Survey of the United States, which makes the official air line flight calculations for the National Aeronautics Association.

On this basis, Lindbergh broke the non-stop distance record established last October by the French aviators, Rignot and Costes, on a flight from Paris to Peking. They covered 5,313 miles, or 8,530 kilometres.

The association intends to certify the Geological Survey's estimate to the Federation Aeronautique Internationale, with a request that it be officially recognized as a new record.

Union of Two Churches Planned In Terminal City

Vancouver, May 24.—The proposed union of St. Andrew's and Wesley, two of the largest United Churches in this city, was discussed at the British Columbia Conference of the United Church yesterday. Visions of a great central church combining both congregations and the traditions of the First Congregational body were outlined by the ministers of both bodies.

Rev. C. A. Williams of Wesley Church, stated the sessions of both churches had approved the plan of the joint church. The pastors being unwilling to take the initiative of amalgamating, they sought the opinion of the conference on the subject. A committee was appointed by a body organized last year to consider the question. The former committee was composed largely of out-of-town delegates and it was considered men with a knowledge of the problem could act in a more capable manner. A report and recommendation, he said, was expected at the present conference.

Rev. A. Kerr of St. Andrew's Church stated the congregations had the vision of a great central church before them when considering amalgamation. This building would represent the United Church of Canada, and would stir the imagination. The best preacher procurable would be needed to fill the pulpit, he said. He pointed out the matter had been taken from the Vancouver Presbytery to the conference as a subject of great importance. He expressed the opinion the congregation were already in accord on the plan.

Mr. Williams stated the matter had been considered by committees appointed by the two churches during the past year.

PROPERTY OF UNITED CHURCH IN B.C. NOW TOTALS $3,065,975

Vancouver, May 24.—The value of United Church lands and property in British Columbia is $3,065,975, it was disclosed in a statistical report presented by Rev. C. H. Daly at the British Columbia Conference of the United Church here. The total sum raised by the church in the conference for the year was $104,000.

The number of presbyteries in the Province was reduced from eight to seven by the junction of East and West Vancouver bodies. The number of members of session is 1,017. Families attending the church in British Columbia number 26,000, an increase of 700.

The number of church members in the Province is 32,000, an increase of 700 during the year. Seven hundred Sunday schools are in operation.

Money raised by the Sunday schools amounted to $45,000 of which $12,000 was contributed to the budget of the church. Young people's societies number 249 in the Province, with a membership of 5,813. These societies raised $55,000 for congregational purposes and $12,000 for missions during the year. Ladies Aid societies contributed $118,000 for congregational and mission purposes. The Woman's Missionary Society raised $40,495 for missions at home and abroad.

HYBRIDIZATION HELD AS CAUSE OF EVOLUTION

Cambridge, Mass., May 23.—Evolution of plants and animals has been powerfully affected by natural hybridization between wild species, according to Prof. Edward C. Jeffrey of Harvard University, writing in the forthcoming issue of Science.

Succeeding generations of these natural hybrids, he says, produce the many fluctuating variations on which natural selections can act, in the manner described by Darwin. One notable phenomenon pointed out by Darwin and other students of evolution, the presence of clear-cut and definite species on islands and in other isolated places, as contrasted with the intergrading and indefinite ones in large natural areas, is explainable on the basis of this natural hybridization theory, because the few original species in isolated places would offer little opportunity for such crossings to occur, whereas the larger areas would support numbers of species and afford correspondingly better chances.

Professor Jeffrey has been able to find material evidence to support his theory that very variable species are in reality natural hybrids. The minute microscopic structure of the cells of plants known to be hybrids, both artificial and natural, displays certain irregularities, which he has found closely paralleled in such large and fluctuating species as the dog roses of Europe and the hawthorns of America, which have long been the despair of systematic botanists.

Cancer Calls For Early Diagnosis

By DR. MORRIS FISHBEN

Under present conditions the one real hope in cancer is early diagnosis and early operation.

Statistical evidence accumulated under the auspices of the Medical Research Council of Great Britain proves the truth of this warning.

One group of investigators, studying the lives of women with cancer, found that a woman with cancer of the breast who is not treated at all, can expect to live 17.2 per cent of the normal duration of her life.

A woman operated on under ordinary conditions, may expect to live 30.4 per cent of her normal duration, whereas one operated on under the most favorable conditions may expect to live 66.5 per cent of the normal duration.

RESULTS OF SURGERY

In a study of women operated on for cancer of the breast in the medical institutions of Leeds, it was found that of those operated on while the growth was still confined to the breast, 90.1 per cent were alive ten years after the operation; of those operated on after the glands under the arm had become involved, 91.3 per cent were dead within ten years after operation.

Of the advanced cases, 84.4 per cent were dead within ten years after operation. These figures indicate the extreme importance of undertaking a satisfactory operation while the growth is still confined to the breast.

SAVING YEARS OF LIFE

A woman in England, fifty-five years of age, may normally expect to live 18.37 years longer. It is estimated that 5,000 cases of cancer of the breast develop among women in England and Wales each year. If all of these were operated on under the most favorable conditions, more than 30,000 years of life would be gained for the entire group.

The expectancy of life of women whose cancer is not treated is only 3.25 years, whereas the one operated on under the best conditions has an expectancy of 12.93 years.

Dr. Hasted of Johns Hopkins University found that twenty-five per cent of the women he operated on for this condition were alive three years after the operation.

ANOTHER VINDICATION

THE REPORT OF THE ROYAL COMMISSION, consisting of Mr. Justice Morrison, W. H. Malkin, and Rev. J. S. Henderson, regarding the improper use of liquor campaign funds must be highly gratifying to the Government and its supporters, and scarcely less so to the public at large. On the basis of its inquiry the Commission completely clears the Government of all charges and suspicion raised by political opponents relative to the increase in the price of beer given to the brewers in 1924, or in regard to the prices paid for liquor generally; it finds that no members of the Legislature were influenced by campaign fund contributions in their decision to permit the sale of beer by the glass, and that no "protection and assurance" were guaranteed or rendered by any political party to liquor interests in return for campaign funds.

The report ought to put an end to the loose talk indulged in by opponents of the Government in the House and in their party press on this subject. Ample opportunity of producing evidence in support of their insinuations and allegations was afforded these elements by the Commission, but they were unable to produce the slightest justification for their attitude. Seldom indeed has there been such a complete collapse of a political campaign against a government as that which has been emphasized by the conclusions of the Commission. This report, like that of Mr. Justice Morrison a short time ago on the Gauthier charges, should have a salutary effect in discouraging the scandal-mongering policy which the Opposition in the Legislature and some of its journalistic supporters mistakenly thought was good political strategy. Any political party which has to depend upon gutter politics as a means of gaining the favor of the electorate invariably cuts a sorry figure, since it discloses by its attitude an utter absence of constructive policy.

A FINE ATTEMPT

TWO AVIATORS STARTED FROM Britain last Friday in an attempt to reach Calcutta in India without a stop. The distance as the crow flies is approximately four thousand miles. They had covered just a little more than 3,400 miles when shortage of fuel forced them down in the Persian Gulf. Another four hours in the air would have sufficed. But the fates were against them.

What these two men have accomplished is highly important to the interests of commercial flying generally. It has demonstrated once more—as Sir Alan Cobham already has proved—that the day soon will dawn when the aeroplane will link Great Britain with India by a service almost as regular as those in operation between Croydon and practically all the European capitals. These aerial pathfinding excursions obviously are the forerunners of a comprehensive service, for it will mean eventually that a flight from Britain to Australia, to South Africa, to Canada, and even to the Orient, will be preferred by the busy traveler to the longer and more tedious journey by rail and steamship.

From a purely economic point of view, of course, there is very little argument in favor of a non-stop flight between Great Britain and Calcutta. It is mechanically practicable and no doubt such a service will be inaugurated when the regular easy-stage schedule has been established. Such a combination will be patterned after the railway system of through trains and those calling at points on the way. What is important, however, is the continued experiment of flights over large areas of water where to alight is to meet disaster. The success of the scheme in this regard obviously depends very largely upon the surmounting, as far as possible, of climatic and other difficulties which at present produce the chief element of uncertainty. Flying over land with large aerial liners already has become a commonplace.

These considerations do not detract one whit from the gallant attempt which the London-Calcutta airman made. They were in the air continuously for practically a day and a half and if unexpected conditions had not been met with, there is every indication that they would have reached their objective. It was a fine feat.

GREAT BRITAIN AND RUSSIA

PREMIER BALDWIN HAS INFORMED the British public through a statement in the House of Commons to-day that Great Britain intends to terminate her trade agreement with Soviet Russia on Thursday of this week and require the withdrawal of the trade delegation and Soviet mission from London unless the House should disapprove of such a course.

This contemplated action on the part of the British Government is the sequel to the recent raid on Arcos House, the headquarters of the Soviet Mission to London, by Scotland Yard men. Mr. Baldwin announces that enough was uncovered by the police on that occasion to prove that the representatives of the Moscow authorities in Great Britain had been engaged in various activities inimical to the interests of the British Empire. He also confirmed the earlier reports that a "highly confidential" document had been in the possession of the occupants of Arcos House and had been duplicated by the photostatic process.

As the debate on the Prime Minister's proposal proceeds in the House the general public may be furnished with fuller details of the raid, what was discovered, what the police expected to discover, and in what manner confidential documents have been obtained from various departments of state. It already is established that the Soviet propagandist continues to display tireless energy in his efforts to whisper the British Empire into the discard; but the suggestion of departmental leaks is a different matter.

What will be the net result of the action which Mr. Baldwin proposes can not be even guessed at at this stage. It is pretty certain to produce a first-class crisis for the Government and probably result in a general election. On his arrival in Great Britain from the United States to-day Mr. Ramsay MacDonald challenged the Prime Minister to go to the country with a complete break with Russia as the issue. The former Premier has made his position clear and he is backed by a fairly substantial body of the general public which fails to understand how the abrogation of the trade agreement will improve the present situation. It is generally conceded, on the other hand, that a rupture will furnish Soviet Russia with a new excuse to embark upon a still more intensive campaign against British interests everywhere.

One thing stands out clearly. Great Britain can only employ economic reprisals. She can not show her displeasure at Russia's behavior at Arcos House by going to war with the Soviet Republic. In fact the relations between the two will become still more strained and both will lose. As an election issue Mr. Baldwin may consider it one that will appeal to the public. Time alone will tell whether the electorate is more interested in Soviet propaganda than it is in the trades union legislation which is now before the House.

WHAT OTHER PAPERS SAY

NO TRESPASSING!
From The New York Herald-Tribune

One need not be possessed of undue Anglophobia to feel a twinge of sympathy with the plaint raised by Mr. O. K. Chesterton in a recent issue of The London Illustrated News. Mr. Chesterton bewails the fact that it can no longer be the boast of Englishmen that their island has never been invaded; that they have fought victoriously through a great war only to find their land overrun by peace-time hosts from over the sea whose influence threatens to undermine native institutions and to change the very face of life.

OUR EXPORT BUSINESS
From The Halifax Chronicle

The trade returns for the fiscal year ended on March 31 last, afford abundant evidence of a revival of prosperity and generally of the improvement of business and progress of the country. The foreign trade for the period named aggregated $2,283,000,000. This represents an increase of $41,000,000 over the preceding fiscal year. The imports amounted to $1,031,000,000, and the exports to $1,252,000,000, leaving a favorable balance of trade of $221,000,000, while for the past five years the aggregate of favorable balance of trade of $221,000,000, while for the past five years the aggregate of favorable balances was $1,400,000,000.

The smaller "balance" last year was in part due to a decrease in exports, amounting to $64,000,000, which was accountable by the lower price for some classes of products, particularly grain during most of the months when the wheat exports were being marketed. Owing to the early setting in of winter a great deal of grain was held up in the Great Lakes. On the whole, the trade showing is excellent.

The usual complaint, however, is made in protectionist quarters that Canada is exporting too many "raw materials" and that too low a proportion of manufactured goods is included in our exports. The latest analysis of the trade figures show an export value of nearly $703,000,000 for Canadian farm products, $37,000,000 of marine origin, $279,000,000 of forest origin and $209,000,000 of mineral. A large proportion of this appears as raw material, but it is not an absolutely correct description, for the products of the farms and the fisheries employ skilled as well as unskilled labor, and in both instances what is exported is largely a finished product.

Queer Quirks of Nature

By ARTHUR N. PACK

When you back in 1869, Leopold Trounvelot, a French artist, naturalist and astronomer, accidentally let escape through an open window a few moths with which he was experimenting in connection with the raising of silkworms in Medford, Mass. It did not create any national excitement. A handful of moths more or less meant little.

Mr. Trounvelot, with a far wider range of vision, knew the importance of the escape of these troublesome little pests and notified the country of the escape of these gypsy moths. However, no attention was paid. One year from that time the gypsy moth was reported as spreading rapidly and within twelve years it had become a serious menace, stripping apple trees, pear trees and maples bare of foliage.

It has been estimated that the unrestricted increase of a single pair of gypsy moths would in eight years destroy the entire vegetation of the United States. So for years trained scientists in the employ of the government have been studying ways and means to keep this plague within bounds and have imported from Europe parasitic insects to prey upon the gypsy moth, as well as experimenting with many kinds of sprays and other means of killing the plague, or preventing it from spreading.

That little accident in the laboratory of M. Trounvelot in letting loose a few of these Portia dispar Linnaeus already cost the country $20,000,000.

Embargoes and quarantines placed upon bulbs or plants from Europe are an effort to exclude any more undesirable settlers who might literally eat us up.

Do You Mean What You Say?

TELL IT TO SWEENEY

TELL IT TO SWEENEY

According to traditional opinion Sweeney was a New York policeman of sympathetic nature whose duty it was to listen to people's troubles. Whenever any one appeared with a grievance or complaint he was told to "tell it to Sweeney." From listening to the troubles of the masses, Sweeney came to symbolize the mass of believing, trusting humanity, as opposed to the more skeptical, critical intelligentsia. The general understanding of the phrase today is "Tell it to somebody who has time to listen," or "Tell it to someone who will believe you." In recent years one of the metropolitan newspapers devoted an immense advertising programme to "telling to Sweeney" in which "Sweeney" typified the great mass of the purchasing public.

Canadian Questions and Answers

Q.—What is the value of Canada's forest industry?

A.—The capital invested in Canada's forest industry is $666,000,000, nearly a third being in lumbering plants and saw mills, and the balance in pulp and paper operations. The latter contributes over $180,000,000, and lumbering approximately $125,000,000 towards Canada's annual production. Railway ties, poles, logs and square timber, etc., brings the sum up to $365,000,000. The forest production of the Dominion is about $440,000,000.

TIMBER CHURCH at Oslo, Norway, was built in 1100 A.D. The edifice is remarkably preserved for its extreme age. The building is no longer used for religious services, but now houses all the Norse antiquities in possession of the government. It is known as the Cym Air Museum. Many such churches are found in the far northern countries, but the church at Oslo is the most noted.

CONFEDERATION AND AFTER

Sixty Years of Progress

THE QUEBEC CONFERENCE ON October 10, 1864, Quebec was the scene of the conference from which evolved a new constitution and during which was laid the basis of a confederation which would spread later on from the Atlantic to the Pacific and cover more than half a continent. The Canadian Cabinet was represented by all its members and the other provinces had sent the following delegates: Nova Scotia, Messrs. Trupper, Henry, McCully, Archibald and Dickie; New Brunswick, Messrs. Tilley, Nuchell, Fisher, Stevie, Gray, Chandler and Johnston; Prince Edward Island, Messrs. Coles, Haviland, Palmer, Gray, McDonald, Whalen and Hope; Newfoundland, Messrs. Shee and Carter.

The conference was presided over by Sir Etienne-Paschal Cartier. Most of his inspiration came from the remarkable and prophetic essay of his eminent nephew, Dr. J.-C. Tache, former Deputy Minister of Agriculture, who, as soon as 1857, published a series of articles in which he recognized a project of Federation which became the fundamental basis of the Federal Act.

The merits of this man, whose modesty equalled his knowledge, have not been sufficiently recognized. The deliberations lasted sixteen days; the delegates were in perfect accord as to the details of their project.

At the same time, receptions succeeded one another. On October 11, His Excellency the Governor-General held a levee in their honor in the chamber of the Legislative Council; on the 14th the Canadian Ministers attended a ball, one of the most brilliant which ever witnessed Quebec, and the following day they were invited to a banquet by the Board of Trade; on the 19th, second ball in honor of the delegates, given by Honorable Mr. Tessier, Speaker of the Legislative Council; on the 20th, official reception at Laval University, congratulatory address by the rector to the Maritime Provinces delegates and reply on their behalf by Honorable Mr. Trupper; on the 21st, third ball at the Legislative Palace, by the "Bachelors of Quebec"; and on the 27th, they left for Montreal on a special train placed at their disposal by the Grand Trunk.

The delegates arrived at Montreal on Monday, October 23, and after a brief session they visited the city. On the same evening a ball was held in their honor at St. Lawrence Hall, attended by more than 1,000 people; next day they were invited to a splendid banquet in the same hall, under the chairmanship of the mayor, Mr. Jean-Louis Baudry. This banquet had an enormous success, and the speakers expressed to their hosts their feelings of sympathy and harmony with eloquence and sentiment. Those who spoke on that occasion were: Fenwick Williams, Col. Dyde, Sir Richard McDonnell, Lieutenant-Governor of Nova Scotia, Hon. M. Archibald, Hon. John Hamilton Gray, Hon. John Ambrose Shee, Hon. Mr. Gray from Prince Edward Island, Hon. Edward Whelan, Hon. T. Heath Haviland, the Hon. Messrs. Cartier, McGeer and Galt.

Tinting Tips

Here's the secret of giving lingerie, stockings, etc., the most gorgeous tints. All tints are really colors. So use real dyes. Get an envelope of the actual dye powder as any drugstore, for fifteen cents. Do your own tinting, which saves money and gives you the exact shade you want.

Diamond dyes do perfectly beautiful tinting—in cold water. A dip, and it's done. And true dyes don't streak! Dye-tinting doesn't look weak, however delicate a tone you use, nor does it wash out unevenly. When you want the tint to be permanent, just use boiling water instead of cold!

Regular dyeing of all dress materials, drapes, etc., just as easy. Ask drugstore for color cards and suggestions. Or, a wealth of ideas in full color, in new book Color Chart free and postpaid: write DIAMOND DYES, Dept. N30, Windsor, Ontario.

SOCIAL PERSONALWOMEN'S AFFAIRS*CLUB AND NEWS*EIGHTY-YEAR-OLD ACTRESS FEELS TOO YOUNG TO RETIRE

Mrs. Whiffen of "Trelawny" Recalls Over Half-century in Theatre

The modern version of the grand-mother with Eton-cropped hair and knee-length skirts may pride herself on her semblance to youth, but one wonders how many of these time-defying matrons will be spry and vivacious at the age of eighty?

The thought arose in the mind of a Times reporter last evening when privileged to hold a brief interview with Mrs. Thos. Whiffen, the Landlady Moseop of "Trelawny of the Wells," who is passing young at eighty-two years. Those who saw her skipping about the stage last evening, speaking with a voice of amazing clarity and freshness could scarcely credit her with four score years, yet this delightful old lady recently held a birthday party when her friends partook of a cake which proudly displayed eighty-two candles.

When asked when she was going to retire from the stage, Mrs. Whiffen unhesitatingly replied, "Not till I get old."

It is not given to many actresses to look back over a stage career of over half a century, yet Mrs. Whiffen recalls with vivid clearness the day when she created the role of Little Buttercup in the first authorized version of Gilbert and Sullivan's "H.M.S. Pinafore" in 1873 at the Standard Theatre in New York. She sighed a little over her memories of the past, and the theatre of the nineties when young blades toasted its reigning beauties, and mused sadly over those of her contemporaries whose names were once household words.

But she refuses to believe that the ubiquitous film will ever out the "legitimate" drama. "How could one ever portray on a screen the beauties of Sullivan's music or the subtlety of Gilbert's wit or the delicacy of Pinafore's satire?" she asked somewhat scornfully. And one felt that it would be rank heresy to say more to the subject.

The part of Mrs. Moseop is not a new one to this white-haired gentle old lady, for she created the role when the play was first produced in America in 1898, and she played it again in 1911 when Ethel Barrymore revived "Trelawny." But she loves it just as much to-day as in the days when the make-up box supplied the lines and wrinkles so charmingly traced by old time himself to-day.

Perhaps the glamour of the footlights contains in it that secret alchemy for which the old philosophers searched in the quest of the elixir of youth, but whatever the source Mrs. Whiffen has indeed found the secret of perennial youth, and those who saw her last evening will share in the hope that the stage will have the benefit of her graceful "lavender" and old lace presence for many years to come.

AIRMAN'S MOTHER SHARES HIS MODESTY

Mrs. Lindbergh Declines Free Passage to Paris and Back

Detroit, Mich., May 24.—Mrs. Evangeline Lodge Lindbergh, mother of Captain Charles A. Lindbergh, will see her boy when he returns to the United States—not before. She so stated to-day in discussing offers from United States and French steamship lines of free passage to Paris and back.

"My boy went to Paris unassisted and he is able to stand on his own feet," she said. "He is in the hands of friends and does not need me now."

The Detroit City Council has invited the young flying hero to visit Detroit, his birthplace, as a guest of the city. A resolution prepared by Councilman William P. Bradley, and adopted by the council yesterday commends Mrs. Lindbergh.

"Mrs. Lindbergh allowed her son to shape his own destiny," he said. "She is an ideal mother."

Although Mrs. Lindbergh sought to keep herself entirely in the background, that the glory of her son's achievement might go to him alone, fellow teachers and pupils at the Case Technical High School would not be denied. They arranged a mass meeting, with addresses by John C. Lodge, her uncle, as acting mayor, and Frank Cody, superintendent of the public schools of Detroit.

The school orchestra of twelve pieces furnished music. Mrs. Lindbergh was in the school room as usual yesterday, as though nothing out of the ordinary had happened over the week-end.

"It's my son's adventure, not mine, and I'm going to work as usual," she said.

Mrs. Lindbergh yesterday refused to sign a contract said to have totaled more than $100,000 for her appearance in a motion picture depicting the American hero. Although she refused to discuss the offer, it was said it ran "well into six figures."

Mrs. Lindbergh plans to go to New York to meet her son on his arrival from Europe.

Autos of Ancient VINTAGE AT DANCE

Living up to their reputation as novel dance hosts, the Troubadours last evening held a delightful dance at the Crystal Garden. The affair took a most novel turn in the form of a drivers' dance, the decorations and effects all tending towards that end. Suspended from the ballroom ceiling were numerous old tires of long discarded automobiles, ancient steering wheels and old-time horns used about ten years back. Above the orchestra platform were two glaring motor headlights.

In the banquet room downstairs a burlesque auto show was held. Here were to be seen all sorts and shapes of cars used within the last decade—"The Willys-Fright" and "The Self-Startler" were particularly in evidence. On the way downstairs the guests passed all sorts of familiar road signs. "Slow," "keep to the right," "intersection" and "cross traffic" were displayed at various points on the "road."

The Crystal Garden orchestra supplied an excellent programme of the latest dance music, and supper was served at tables placed along the promenade.

Among the many guests present were Mr. and Mrs. J. O. Cameron, Mr. and Mrs. R. J. Cummins of Seattle, Mr. and Mrs. O. Patterson, the Misses Margaret Adam, Gwen Wood, Marjorie Raymond, Margaret Fletcher, Kathleen Bone, Sugar Hodson, Beth Graham, Jean McLaughlin, Betty Savannah, Kitty Graham, Olive Acton, Noel Cusack, Babs Bray, Elaine Gallier, Frances Hamersley, Florence Whitney, Justa McKenna, May Crombie, Helen Stewart, Gertrude E. GRAND PRESIDENT VISITS LOCAL ORDER

E. McCleary of Detroit Speaks Before Ye Loyal Knights of Ye Round Table

"Round Table" has no definite programme, but it is an exceptionally broad movement and the day is coming when members of this order will take their citizenship both in Canada and the United States," declared Ernest McCleary, of Detroit, Michigan, international president of the Order of Ye Loyal Knights of Ye Round Table in his address given before the local knights at the Empress Hotel last night.

INSTALLS PRESIDENT

The international president was formally introduced to the Victoria members by Dr. Douglas Graham, retiring president. The first duty the Victoria order called upon Mr. McCleary to perform was to install Col. W. N. Winsby as president for the next twelve months.

The speaker described the Round Table as a beautiful piece of architecture. His work, he stated, was to improve this if possible. After much investigation he had found about three weaknesses, and the main one was the financial problem. However, he had found what in his opinion was a possible solution, and this he intended to present to the international executive at a meeting to be held shortly in San Francisco.

The visitor told the Victoria members of how the order in Detroit was interesting itself in the fighting of narcotics. In that city there are approximately 10,000 drug addicts. Since they have begun their fight, the knights of the Detroit order have been successful in rescuing six human wrecks and have built them up into respectable citizens, the speaker said.

"In Minneapolis and St. Paul, the orders are looking into the negro question and fine work they are accomplishing," Mr. McCleary stated.

The grand president told of how hundreds of thousands of business and professional men meet in regular fellowship each week in virtually every country on earth, breaking down barriers of misunderstanding between men locally, breaking it down between states, cities, provinces and between nations internationally, and yet the movement is only twenty-one years old.

BROAD VIEWS—WIDER INTEREST
"Every active business man and professional man, if he would attain his best, must continuously fight the tendency to become self-centred and over-trained along one line. And he must continuously seek a means to bring into his life the broader views and wider interests to be gained through regular fellowship with other world-wide men."

"You know that it was Margaret Beaufort, Countess of Richmond, and mother of Henry VII of England, who was largely responsible for the introduction of Caxton's printing press and that after printing the Bible, Caxton printed the story of King Arthur and his knights, so the Round Table is unique in being the only such club with a literary and legendary background and its history can be found in any public library. Its emblem is the sword embedded in the stone and its motto is "he who seeks to serve another, best serves." Mr. McCleary concluded.

A resolution expressing a hearty vote of thanks to the speaker was moved by Prof. F. Elliott and seconded by Rev. W. A. Guy.

Before retiring as president of the order Dr. Douglas Graham read his report for the year, in which he expressed his gratitude for the fullest co-operation he had received from the executive and members during his term of office.

A vote of thanks was tendered to the retiring executive and the meeting, which brought to a close by the members giving three rousing cheers for the international president and three for the retiring president.

DIAMOND JUBILEE PLANS ADVANCING

Bellingham Contingent is Coming 1,200 Strong For Canada's National Holiday

An excursion from Bellingham with its Mayor, Aldermen, May Queen float and 1,200 citizens will attend the Diamond Jubilee celebration in Victoria, the executive committee of the Dominion Day organization was informed last night at a further session to receive reports from its sub-committees.

Other excursions are also to be arranged, with the result that there will be a large influx of visitors in Victoria for the holiday period.

One of the central features of celebration will be the grand parade, expected to take place in the afternoon, given point, and in which a moving historical pageant will disclose scenes from Canadian history dealing with the sixty years of Confederation. Naval and military forces will play a big part in the parade, which will also be open to fraternal societies, service clubs, and other private and public organizations. Means of financing the spectacle are being considered, with voluntary subscriptions now possible through the sale of stickers for stores and automobiles. These incorporate a patriotic design in keeping with the celebration and are proving popular with the public. They may be obtained at the headquarters of the Diamond Jubilee Committee, 1107 Government Street.

Nickel Earnings May be $3 Share

New York, May 24 (By R. F. Clark Dickard) — The International Nickel Company is earning at about same rate as last year when it showed $3 a share on common. It is believed this year that it may earn around $4 a share after depreciation and depletion. Advance in stock has been due to the striking of copper ore in two drill holes some time ago at Froed Mine at depth of 2,000 feet. These drill holes show ore assaying from nine per cent. to fifteen per cent. copper.

AT THE THEATRES

JOHN BARRYMORE IS SEEN AT HIS BEST IN 'THE BELOVED ROGUE'

A motion picture that is individual in type, original in conception and treatment, with none of the hackneyed, bromide features with which the less courageous are wont to clutter up their offerings—such is "The Beloved Rogue," first of John Barrymore's screen contributions under the United Artists' banner, which opened last night at the Dominion Theatre.

Barrymore, ever forthright and convincing, seemingly unlimited in his capacity for varied characterizations, sets a standard in this vehicle which even he will find difficult to surpass. Given a story that must have been very much to his liking, he succeeds in so submerging his identity in his role that it seems to be really Francis Villon, beloved French poet of the fifteenth century, who returns to entertain us with his brilliant moments of inspiration. Sterling patriot and republican, he is not without all other virtues of his time, and yet a house-breaker and profligate.

WEATHER OBLIGED DURING FILMING OF 'THE BETTER OLE'

It is small wonder that Southern California has become the hub of the motion picture industry, if one may accept as a sample the accommodating behavior of the weather during the filming of "The Better Ole" production of "The Better Ole" starring Syd Chaplin and directed by Charles F. Reisner.

Although many of the exterior scenes placed in sunny France were filmed during the winter or rainy season, the sun never ceased to shine. Later in the spring, when the rainy season was supposedly over, the company filmed exterior scenes in the muddy trenches. Jupiter Pluvius kindly obliged by sending a week and a half of rain, when the trench sequences were filmed with the aid of many powerful sun-arc searchlights.

"The Better Ole," now showing at the Variety Theatre.

JACKIE COOGAN IS STILL A STAR HIS LATEST FILM PROVES

While Jackie Coogan was producing his latest film, "Johnny Get Your Hair Cut," at the Columbia Theatre, there was much talk concerning the little star's future in pictures. Many believed that the shearing of the famous golden locks would spell the end of his career, but those who were closest to the young genius knew that he would continue to shine as one of the brightest stars in the cinema.

Following a private showing of "Johnny Get Your Hair Cut" to production executives at the Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer studios in Culver City a short time ago, Jackie was signed on a new long-term contract which calls for two pictures a year. Two films every twelve months may seem like a meagre policy and lacking in the elements so dear to the hearts of picture exploiters who like to brag of flocks of pictures costing truck loads of money, but according to Jack Coogan Sr., his son will maintain this schedule.

BIG DOUBLE BILL OFFERED AT COLISEUM THEATRE THIS WEEK

On the stage five first-class vaudeville acts are guaranteed to give real entertainment at the Coliseum Theatre. The headliner of this vaudeville bill is "Oh My!" the child wonder contortionist and specialty dancer of the continent. "Oh My!" has won an enviable reputation in the Western States and Canada, and is very popular wherever he has played. "Oh My!" gives an exhibition which is positively breathtaking, and her acrobatic stunts are marvelous when it is considered she is only a young girl. Her act will prove all and more than one would expect. The other acts are all deserving of praise and give varied and excellent amusement.

On the screen the Coliseum again offers a double attraction. "I Prayed and God Gave Me Twenty Cents," is the story that the Motion Picture Company has adapted from Dixie Wilson's story, "God Gave Me Twenty Cents." It opened a $15,000,000 theatre in New York, and is the tale of two men—one good, the other bad, of two women—one a mere child, the other hard; and of two times—both tales.

J. P. McEvoy's play, "The Pottery," starring the great comedian, W. C. Fields, as Pa Potter, is the Coliseum's second offering on the silver sheet. And he is Pa. From his very first entrance all are drawn to this poor, struggling henpecked husband, and through his triumphs and failures are moved to smile and even sob just a little.

BEN LYON BRINGS MUCH LAUGHTER IN 'THE PERFECT SAP'

Harold Bechtel is appearing as The Rector in "A Knight for a Day" the stage attraction at the Playhouse Theatre this week. This role gives Mr. Bechtel a chance at serious character work a little different from his usual comedy material.

Bechtel's appearance is given by tortoise shell glasses to Ben Lyon, First National's popular young featured player, in his newest release at the Playhouse, titled "The Perfect Sap." "They may make me look studious," says Ben, "but I hope I never have to wear them permanently." Ray Rockett, who produced this picture, selected a brilliant lineup of players for Ben's cast. Pauline Starke has the leading feminine role.

AT THE CAPITOL

Antonio Moreno and Constance Talmadge in "Venus of Venice."

"PRIVATE SECRETARY" AT CRYSTAL GARDEN HOLIDAY ATTRACTION

No more popular stage offering could have been chosen as a holiday attraction than "The Private Secretary." With its richly humorous situations it is a positive guarantee of ninety minutes of unalloyed pleasure. The play will not be an abridged version of the original play but will be complete in three acts. It is being produced by the Co-Optimist Comedy Company and an augmented cast, including Mr. and Mrs. Legge-Willis, Bob Webb, Major Taylor, L. G. Phillips, Dick Noron, Mr. Corby, Mrs. Belby, Evelyn Mitchell, Miss Ella Pottinger. The Crystal Garden Orchestra will also provide a short musical programme as usual and after 10 p.m. a popular dance will continue until 1 a.m.

CONSTANCE TALMADGE WINS NEW LAURELS IN HER LATEST PICTURE

The stage attractions at the Capitol Theatre this week offer Peggy Cartwright in "Steps in Dutch," David Morgan the internationally famous Welsh tenor in song selections, and Daley and Kaye, two versatile girls, in a novelty presentation. The Capitol Theatre concert orchestra will also be heard playing a special musical interpretation for the feature attraction, "Venus in Venice."

The story is one of a charming little madcap who, dominated by a crook, pursues a course of thievery among the canal gondolas with reckless abandon, her escapades plunging her into the companionship of an American artist, with unforeseen consequences of a most exciting nature.

WORLD-FAMOUS BAND COMING TO CITY

The Australian National Band which will open its Canadian tour at the Victoria Arena on Saturday, May 28. The band will arrive on the Aorangi on Friday and will be publicly received. They will be considerably augmented from the number shown in this photo.

Australian Band Unique In Variety of Entertainment

Every Kind of Music, From Grand Opera to Latest Jazz, on Programme of Famous Musicians Coming to the Arena Saturday

A good vaudeville or variety bill usually consists not only of all kinds of entertainment but it is laid out to please all sorts of patrons. "Tastes of people are of a wide and varied nature. What pleases one, does not please another. This is undoubtedly a true factor in music, and although the range is cut down from an entertainment standpoint, yet the music end of any variety entertainment is an easy average of 75 per cent.

The Australian National Band has been contracted to appear here on the date of May 28 for two concerts, by Lester Patrick. These concerts will be heard in the Arena. This band probably stands alone in the world to-day in the great variety of entertainment offered. They have studied the requirements of popular appeal from a broad-minded standpoint, with a result that all tastes are satisfied in any one of their concerts. Every kind of music is played, from the Grand Overtures to the latest jazz numbers. There are soloists galore including cornet, trombone, French horn, bass, xylophone, combinations of all these and a big feature is their "only trombone quartet in the world." In addition, many wonderful effects are offered. One of these is the imitation of the mighty grand organ. This feature has been a most popular one everywhere. Then, when it comes to singing, these boys—all of them young—can be classed with the best and in their jazz numbers they act as well as play. Humor abounds in all their programmes.

The Australian National Band has attained a degree of perfection seldom reached by other similar organizations. Their critics have conceded this point in every country they have visited. For this reason, the educational value of the band is of great importance, when considering them as worthy of anyone's times and money to hear.

The sale of tickets will commence Wednesday, May 25, at Filmmey and Ritchie, 611 View Street.

PERFORMANCE OF PINERO COMEDY AN UNFORGETTABLE ONE

Wonderful Cast of Stars in "Trelawney of the Wells" Last Night

With a constellation of theatrical stars of the first magnitude to interpret its subtle humor and its moments of pathos, Pinero's famous comedy of the 'sixties, "Trelawney of the Wells," was presented at the Royal Victoria Theatre last evening before an audience to whom the performance will be an unforgettable one.

Never in the history of the local theatre has there been assembled for one production such a galaxy of notable actors and actresses, and its roster brought to mind the programme of a royal command performance or one of the other all-star casts to which playgoers in Britain are favored on rare occasions.

Pinero's brilliant comedy subtly portrays the demarcation of caste in the 'sixties, when an almost unmovable social barrier divided them on either side of the footlights, and when the marriage of an actress with the son of a noble house was indeed a mesalliance. Against the background of the Bohemianism of the "gipsy" theatrical group who make up the company at the famous old Sadlers' Wells Theatre, Pinero has etched in bold relief the rigid conventions and proprieties of the Vice-Chancellor's home in Cavendish Square with its crushing gentilities, beneath which the actress, Rose Trelawney, is denuded of her youthful spirits and natural buoyancy.

John Drew, the dean of American actors, gave an unforgettable picture of the stern old aristocrat, Sir William Gower, Vice-Chancellor, contemptuous of all signs, as he designated the theatrical fraternity, ruling his home and his womenfolk with an iron hand. One can say no more of Mr. Drew than that, in such a galaxy of stars, his performance stood out head and shoulders above the others, brilliant though they were.

One of his finest pieces of acting was that when memories of his youth were kindled by a reference to the great Edmund Kean, when the actor and the inhibitions of caste were forgotten as he donned the sword and order worn by Kean in the role of King Lear.

In the title role, Helen Gahan gave a finished performance of Rose Trelawney, skilfully contrasting the evanescent leading lady of the Wells and the bored and unhappy caged bird of the Cavendish Square household. As Avonla Bunn, the philosophical, light-hearted actress, Estelle Winwood was refreshingly naive, while Peggy Wood acted with charming grace in the character of Imogen Parrott, the dethroned actress, who turns producer.

Mrs. Thos. Whiffen, the dove of the cast, maintained all the best traditions of the old school of acting and deportment in her interpretation of the lovable Mrs. Mosson, the lapidary, and one immediately thought of the line, "age cannot wither, nor custom stale her infinite variety." Henrietta Crossman, as Mrs. Telfer, reduced from playing the role of queen to the menial part of wardrobe-dresser for the company in which she had starred, and ERIC THURGOOD, as the daily-checked, early Victorian Miss Trafalgar Gower, are also veterans of the old school, acting with easy grace and flawless technique.

Eric Dressler made the most of the somewhat colorless role of Arthur Gower, lover of Rose, and Holo Peters was brilliant as the penniless actor and playwright, Tom Wrench. O. P. Hegg's brought all the brilliance of his reputation to the minor role of Ablett, the grocer, and made of it a clever character study. Otto Kruger was an amusing buffoon as Augustus Colpoys, rounding out a notable cast.

The quaint costumes of the women with their enormous crinolines and pantalettes were an education in themselves and helped to sustain the early Victorian atmosphere of inhibition and repression which characterizes this brilliant comedy of English life in the 'sixties.

FOR Acid Stomach PHILLIPS' Milk of Magnesia

Instead of soda hereafter take a little "Phillips' Milk of Magnesia" in water any time for indigestion or sour, acid, gassy stomach, and relief will come instantly.

BETTER THAN SODA

For fifty years genuine "Phillips' Milk of Magnesia" has been prescribed by physicians because it overcomes three times as much acid in the stomach as a saturated solution of bicarbonate of soda, leaving the stomach sweet and free from all gases. Besides, it neutralizes acid fermentations in the bowels and gently urges this souring waste from the system without purging. It is far more pleasant to take than soda.

NORTHERN AREAS SHOW BIG GROWTH

Agriculture Makes Rapid Strides in Wide Variety of Field Crops

Wheat Growing Becoming Important Industry; Seed Production Increases

Northern British Columbia, with its rich valleys lying along the Canadian National Railway, is becoming an important wheat raising district as well as a large producer of timothy hay seed, according to the annual reports of R. G. Sutton and D. D. Munro, district agriculturists at Prince George and Smithers, made public by Hon. E. D. Barrow, Minister of Agriculture. All branches of agriculture are showing important progress in the North, but the development of export wheat and hay seed production are the most important developments in the last year, the district agriculturists state.

To the establishment of the Government elevator at Prince Rupert is attributed the stimulus noticeable in wheat growing, which is estimated by the district agriculturist at Smithers to represent an increase of 175 per cent in his district. The wheat was marketed through the Alberta wheat pool, which holds the lease on the elevator. The genesis of this movement for increased production of wheat is stated in the report of the district agriculturist at Prince George to have arisen from a request from the management of the Prince Rupert elevator for samples of wheat grown along the line of the Grand Trunk Pacific division of the Canadian National Railway. After these had been forwarded and a favorable report on same received, it was suggested to the farmers of the district that they engaged in commercial wheat growing on a modest scale.

BIG YIELD OF WHEAT
The idea was taken up by a number of farmers around Vanderhoof, between five and six hundred acres being sown to Marquis wheat. A close watch was kept on the crop during the growing season. Weather conditions remained favorable so that the crop was all cut and practically all threshed before the end of the season. In the late September, a good yield was received, estimated at twenty-five bushels per acre average. The quality averaged fair, but would have been better had better seed been used.

A considerable quantity is being held for seed as the acreage sown this year will probably be many times that of last year. This is a move of great importance to the district. Timothy hay has been the main crop of the Nechaco district for some years. Its production has grown year by year in the face of a fairly stationary market. The only possible result has been a decrease in price and last year a small carry-over, when the situation was so far improved in that the acreage sown to wheat reduced the acreage in hay. It will be this to a further extent this year with the result that the production of hay is bound to show a decline and thus a surplus will be avoided.

COARSE GRAINS
The wheat pool does not handle oats and barley at the Prince Rupert elevator, and these grains for feed, pot-atoes cannot be shipped East to compete with Alberta products; nor shipped south on account of excessive freight rates. Local consumption has to be depended upon for disposition of the crop, but such markets are limited.

For this reason there is a surplus of oats in the Bulkley Valley, although farther east in the Prince George district such a condition is not reported as existing; shipments of seed oats to Alberta are hoped for.

ALFALFA HAY
The move toward a more diversified type of farming is also noticeable in the fact that the Vanderhoof district this year shipped out a car of alfalfa hay and has approximately two more cars available. Mr. Sutton states in his report. For some years there has been several small areas in alfalfa, some well established, some otherwise, but the production has been negligible until this year. This amount has been grown by two farmers. They got two crops during the season, and an average production three tons per acre. The area in this crop will increase year by year, providing another source of revenue, and in turn reducing the volume of timothy hay production. It is very gratifying to note the establishment of alfalfa in the district as each year considerable time and thought have been given to studying conditions with a view towards the successful growing of this crop.

SEED GROWING

The outstanding feature in 1926 was the increased production of timothy seed, the district agriculturist at Smithers reports. From the 1925 crop 50,000 pounds were marketed, and about 150,000 pounds will be from 750,000 to 1,700,000 pounds; all of which have been sold to Vernon & Bucklerfield Limited, Vancouver, at eight cents per pound, f.o.b. shipping point, bags during the season, and an average provided by purchasers.

Grade No. 1 has been given to 85 per cent of the seed, No. 2 to 15 per cent and No. 3 to 1 per cent. On quality analysis the crop was found to be seed would grade No. 1, but owing to the fact that in threshing the seed has been hulled in excess of the 25 per cent permitted in grade No. 1, and 35 per cent permitted in grade No. 1 C.W., the result is that 14 per cent is grading No. 2.

After having put the possibilities of seed growing before the farmers for a number of years, the district agriculturist at Prince George expresses gratification that a start has been made in that phase of production in the Nechaco valley. It is reported that approximately four tons of timothy seed were marketed last year, and in small lots sold at 11½ cents per pound at Vanderhoof, through the medium of Farmers' Institutes.

FARMERS CLEAN SEED

In speaking of the method of cleaning seed, Mr. Sutton refers to the agency of one of the growers, and says: "While waiting for the Burns Lake machine to finish, Mr. Reid rigged an ordinary hand fanning machine with special sieves and put the seed through it. It was very successful to begin with, and so he did not have much difficulty. He got grade 1 C.W. on his own seed and grade 2 on his neighbors. In the second case the grade was due to hulled seed only."

LIVE STOCK PROSPECTS

That the abattoir at Prince Rupert is proving to be of decided benefit to the beef producers of the Bulkley Valley and Francois Lake district is indicated in the report of the district agriculturist for that area. Carload shipments started moving to the abattoir early in July, and all beef offerings were shipped and marketed by January 10. Formerly the settlers shipped their beef animals to room the hills until driven home by snow and cold, when all were offered for sale at one time, temporarily oversupplying the markets, with the result that prices were forced down to a point lower than the cost of production.

The old methods of feeding and caring for beef animals in winter feeding only sufficient to sustain life until new grass appeared in the spring, have almost entirely disappeared. Settlers are now more inclined to keep smaller herds, giving them better winter care, so that they can market their beef almost any month in the year, which is more remunerative than the former system of both feeding and marketing. A number of settlers are becoming interested in sheep-raising. Last fall a double decked cargo was shipped from Lethbridge by Robert Kelley of Houston, taking advantage of the 25 per cent reduction in freight rates, offered by the railroad for a limited time. Several farmers have also gone in for hog-raising in a small way, and should, within the next two years, be able to ship hogs in cars to the abattoir in Prince Rupert.

DAIRY PRODUCTION

The most noticeable feature of the dairy industry of the Bulkley Valley during 1926 was the increase in shipments of whole milk and sweet cream to Prince Rupert.

This was accounted for by the reduction of the commodity rate by its extension to 300 miles from Prince Rupert instead of 200 miles as formerly. Under this agreement a five-gallon can travels 250 miles at a rate of .70 cents, while formerly it cost $1.30.

In dealing with the question of insect pests and fungus disease, the district agriculturist for Prince George district states that few crops have been appreciably damaged. In regard to potato diseases a great improvement is noted, due to better seed selection and treatment.

The district covered by the Prince George report is said to be practically free of weeds. Occasionally noxious weeds find their way in, but particular care is taken to prevent their spread. Specimens of such weeds, and specimens of wild herbs of the poison group have been taken to farmers meetings and exhibited for discussion of control measures.

BIG BERRY CROP LIKELY DESPITE BACKWARD SEASON

The season is very backward, especially compared with 1926, which was one of the earliest on record, says today's crop report on Victoria and Gulf Islands conditions, issued by the Department of Agriculture.

The condition is about three weeks behind last year, but not so far behind a normal season. Moisture conditions have been generally good, but fine weather is now required. Severe frosts between April 18 and 21 caused considerable damage to plums and sweet cherries, which were in full bloom, and to early strawberry blossoms. Frost injury to apples and pears is not noticeable.

Strawberries wintered well and Magocan are now just about at the height of their bloom. It is anticipated that the first berries will be on the market about June 1. There is an increased acreage, which should give an increase in tonnage.

Loganberries have not come through the winter in very good condition. In many cases there is considerable winter injury in the older plantations, while the younger plants are more vigorous. While there will be an increased acreage to harvest from, the tonnage will probably not be greater than in 1926. Raspberries have also suffered from winter injury. Gooseberries and currants look in good condition. Most varieties of apples are now just in full bloom, and the indications point to a good to heavy crop in nearly all varieties. Pears are somewhat patchy, and there will probably only be an average to light crop.

Olivet cherries showed a very heavy bloom, which is going off at the present time. Greenhouse cucumbers and tomatoes have been moving out in increasing quantities, but the dull weather has held the crop of tomatoes back considerably.

PRISONERS OF ACCUMULATION

By OLIVE ROBERTS BARTON
"Clean up! Paint up! Plant up!" Cities have adopted it for a slogan in the Spring, and it's a good one. Some cities go so far as to help with the Spring cleaning and cart away free gratis for nothing your collection of odds and ends and rubbish that accumulates in attic and cellar in spite of you.

It is a fine civic movement and should be appreciated by every citizen. Moreover it is an excellent opportunity to "chuck out." How we hang on to things because some day we might need them!

Unless we are absolutely certain that a special thing is going to be needed it is foolish to give it house room, or closet room, or drawer room. The Japanese in their little cardboard houses, could give us a lesson, and lo, how simple is their housekeeping!

Older civilizations are object lessons in simple dressing and simple living. To begin with they do not accumulate clutter. And if they wish to take on a new love in the way of adornment, they deftly do away with the old.

We do keep the silliest things! A friend was too exhausted to play bridge one evening because she had been up in her attic all day cleaning. "It's a regular world's museum!" she declared. "Three generations of old stuff, and John won't let me throw out a thing. There's even an old still up there that's over a hundred years old. I clean that thing off twice a year. Imagine! No—" at the laugh that followed—"It's of no mortal use. John and nobody else ever touches it. It belongs to his grand-father. And that's only one of dozens of things."

You know the story of a "Piece of String." A thirty gentleman with a penchant for saving could not pass even a bit of string without picking it up.

He picked up one too many—was arrested and charged with finding and keeping money. He spent the rest of his life in jail.

Typical, isn't it? We're slaves and prisoners just that much more for everything we accumulate.

Basel, Switzerland, has issued special "clean-up" stamps to commemorate this year's exhibition of Swiss industries.

Oaklands Supreme In School Sports Again

High Honors Pass From Sir James Douglas School to Their Keenest Rivals of Last Seven Years; Huge Crowd Watches Young Athletes in Spirited Competitions at Willows; Sir James Douglas Are Tug-of-war Champions

Young athletes from the Oaklands School were successful in winning not only the Mitchell & Duncan cup at the annual school sports held at the Willows yesterday afternoon, but captured the cup donated by the now defunct Parent-Teacher Federation for the greatest aggregate score. Furthermore, Oaklands has a good chance of making a clean sweep of the main prizes for the children's gala day, as possession of the junior cup has not yet been decided. Girls under eight years of age have yet to run for this trophy. Since Oaklands held the cup last year they need but one point more to keep it another twelve months. One point would bring them into a tie with their nearest rivals, and two points would give them a win. Their hopes are with the tiny, feminine athletes who will wear their colors at the adjourned running of this last race next Friday.

The Mitchell & Duncan cup changed hands yesterday, passing from the trophy cabinet of the Sir James Douglas School to the safety of Robert McInnes, principal of Oaklands School. For the last seven years these two schools have had a corner on the Senior cup. Either one or the other has taken possession of it at the annual sports, and all the other schools have failed to break in and end their reign.

HARD TUGS

The cup donated by the Hudson's Bay for the tug of war was won by Sir James Douglas after keen competition. Quads Street was second in this event, and might have won the third pull, an "extra," but for the fact that they had to compete in three straight events without a rest. They were obviously tired and pulling under great strain in their last tug with the victors.

THOUSANDS ATTEND

Five thousand or more persons crowded the grandstands and bleachers of the Willows Park when the whistle blew to summon the young contestants for the first event. Each running event was divided into two heats, and the first three runners in each heat entered the finals.

The most interesting event of the whole programme was the tug of war. The preliminaries were held on May 20 and four schools qualified for the finals. After the first elimination, Quads Street went out to pull. Twice they pulled victoriously, but in their third grueling test they lost.

DENNISON WINS

In the half-mile open event there was fine competition, with Joe Dennison of Sir James Douglas leading in a fast field. In the first stage the runners were in a pack, with Matteo Di Orto, Dennison, McMurichie and Turner flying along together. Suddenly, they pulled victoriously, but in their third grueling test they lost.

The open bicycle race, over a half-mile course, was another spectacular and well-contested event. T. McGavin rode to a thrilling finish to win first place, and Cameron and Yukon Jones finished in second and third places respectively out of a field of ten.

Every other event was hard-fought and there was much merriment when the tinniest of all the runners, girls and boys under seven, lined up at the starting post and ran with all their strength. But the little girls under seven could not be started with a gun, because they were too frightened. Only the little boys under seven were allowed this privilege, and they made the most of it.

Favorites Continue to Win While Two New Stars Arise; American Passing

Hoylake, Eng., May 24.—J. E. Haley of New York played himself into a prominent position in the British amateur golf championship tournament today by defeating F. Williamson of Carlisle City, 4 and 3. To-morrow Haley meets Cyril Tooley, former champion and one of Great Britain's greatest amateurs. Tooley today beat Lord Charles Hope, 3 and 2.

Joshua Crane, Boston veteran golfer, who considers his appearance in the British amateur golf championship as practice for the Anglo-American veteran match for golfers over fifty-five years of age, which is to be played at Bunningsdale, July 2, lost to J. W. Nelson of the Royal Calcutta Club, 2 up.

JOHN BALL LOSES
John Ball, sixty-three-year-old veteran British golfer, failed to save off the challenge of youth, losing 4 and 2 to J. R. Abercrombie of the Royal Liverpool. Abercrombie was born the year Ball won the title.

Not a Lorton of Walton Heath eliminated Frank C. Newton of Brookline, Mass., 3 and 2.

Roger Wethered beat Stanley Lunt of Moseley, 2 and 1.

Perry Brower, formerly of San Francisco, now living in Paris, was defeated by W. A. Murray, West Hill Club, 7 and 5.

Only one casualty appeared in the ranking British list in yesterday's play. Although the former champion, Cyril Tooley and Roger Wethered, came through their first tests easily, Robert Harris, Scottish star, lost at the nineteenth hole to Robert Cant, a fellow Scot, unknown outside the host nation where he works in his native village of Carnoustie.

Another unknown, Norman Sutton, a vanner railroad worker from the West Chester Artisans' Club, robbed Harold Wilson of his hundredth victory in British amateur play, reversing a record of twenty-five years. The veteran had turned in ninety-nine wins, but was stopped by Sutton, 4 to 3.

W. L. Richards of Roslyn, N.Y., wearing three sweaters and wooden mittens, "beat" himself from what the natives termed "gentle breeze" fall by losing to A. Murray, West Hill Club, 6 and 5. Murray played No. 1 on the Scottish team against England last Saturday.

W. C. Hunt of Houston, Texas, met the stiffest opposition of any American in action to R. H. E. de Montmorency of Stoke Poles, 6 and 4. Montmorency played on the British Walker Cup team in 1921.

Other Americans who were victims of the British clubs were Paul Ashill of Orange, N.J., who lost to W. Archdale, Little Ashton; R. B. Foster, New York, beaten by T. P. Perkins, Castle Brunswick; C. G. Osborne of Boston, defeated by G. D. Hannay of Addington, and John W. Lawrence of Pittsburgh, eliminated by A. H. Reid, Bunningsdale.

OVER 800 ENTRIES FILED FOR U.S. OPEN GOLF CHAMPIONSHIP

New York, May 24.—A record-breaking entry of more than 800 golfers, including virtually every ranking professional in the country, will compete in the sectional qualifying rounds for the national open championship at Oakland, June 14-16. It was disclosed today by the United States Golf Association.

Bill Mehlhorn, Macdonald Smith and George Von Elm were among the last to enter in an eleven-hour rush that swamped officials.

Bobby Jones, defending champion, and the first thirty low scorers in last year's championship, all have filed entries and are exempt from qualifying.

There will be only 111 places open to those who are competing in the sectional qualifying rounds.

HORSE RACING

New York, May 24.—On a sloppy track the Rosedale Stable's Dangerous won the Hyde Park handicap, feature event of Belmont yesterday.

Dangerous, a favorite in the betting, did the mile and one-sixteenth in 1:46 2-5.

Scottish Football Eleven Arrives In Dominion For Tour

Opening Game to be Played in Montreal To-morrow; Team in Good Shape

Montreal, May 23.—The Scottish soccer team, which will tour Canada during the next few months arrived in Montreal to-day on board the C.P.R. steamer Melita. The party is composed of eighteen players. The team will open its tour here to-morrow against an all-Montreal eleven.

The players, in charge of Robert Campbell, president of the Scottish Football Association, are scheduled to play nineteen games during their sojourn in Canada, and will travel from Montreal, where they are billed to open to-morrow, to Victoria and back between now and July 16, upon which date they return to Scotland aboard the Melita, also of the Canadian Pacific line.

Six players are from the Glasgow Rangers; three from the Glasgow Celtic, two from St. Johnston's; three from Falkirk, and one each from Greenock, Dundee, Clyde and St. Mirren, and from the goalie down, all of them are worthy exponents of the game, several of the players being internationals.

McGarry of Glasgow, Celtic, is the trainer for the trip.

Mr. Phillip, an official of the association, is accompanying the team and will act as linesman for some of the matches, while H. McCulloch of the Glasgow Weekly Record, is their publicity representative during the tour, while he will cover for six Scottish papers.

South Vancouver athletes won an overwhelming victory. They piled up 124½ points to win the championship with ease. Their nearest rivals, King Edward, had only fifty-nine points.

The Red and Blue athletes were in everything and the girls' events in particular and won both the boys' and girls' championships.

Percy Williams of King Edward and Miss Hockley of South Vancouver, were the outstanding performers of the day. Williams was in rare form. He tore through all opposition to do the hundred in the covered 10 fath. His time in the 220, 32 1-5 seconds, was nothing short of phenomenal. This time breaks the present British Columbia record, which was established by Frank McCounell, and stands at 22 3-5.

Miss Hockley also broke a British Columbia record by her leap of sixteen feet, six and one-half inches in the senior girls' broad jump.

The opening race will be started at 7 o'clock and there will be three hours of thrilling races and spectacular diving winding up with a water polo match between the pick teams of Victoria and Vancouver.

It is expected that a large crowd will gather to witness the gala, which should be the best held here this year.

Apparent Loss Often Turned Into Victory

Bobby Jones Deals With Part-Lucky Breaks Play in Golf; Stroke of Fortune Will Often Convert Listless Human Awaiting Defeat Into Whirling Dynamo; Tells of Cases Where Breaks Have Swung the Tide in Big Championships

By BOBBY JONES

It is, of course, impossible to participate in or witness a great deal of competitive golf without recognizing the tremendous part played by the breaks of fortune. In any game in which a ball is driven over an uneven terrain the element of luck is bound to be of great importance. Two balls striking the ground only a yard apart may finish one in a bunker, the other near the hole. That, of course, is expected. But why a lucky bound or a putt that stays out or goes in often changes the whole aspect of a match is not so easy to explain. Sometimes the winning of one hole, which in itself is not important, will give to one player a feeling of confidence or a determination to win which transforms him from a listless human into a whirling dynamo.

Yankees Clout Two Home Runs But Senators Get Around Bases More Easily

White Sox Strengthen Hold on Second Place; Cincinnati Lost to Pirates

NEW YORK, May 24.—The Yankees hit two homers yesterday, but that was not enough to win a ball game for them. All the circuit-wallops did was to fatten the homerun mark of Babe Ruth and Lou Gehrig, who are having quite some fun racing for the home run title to-day over Call Boy, Frank Curzon's big Colt, who had been a favorite in the Winter betting. Sickle was backed at nine to two against, whereas Call Boy was 5-1, a shade lower odds. The great Epsom Classic will be run on June 1, with about twenty-four horses at the barrier.

Alphonse Thomas held the Browns to three hits at St. Louis, and the Chicago White Sox, 4-1, thereby tightening their hold on second place. It was the seventh victory for Thomas in nine starts this season. He had pitched twenty-five scoreless innings up until the night yesterday when the Browns avoided a shutout by scoring one run on a walk, singles and sacrifice. Cleveland and Detroit broke even in a double-header at Cleveland; Detroit won the second, 7-5; Cleveland took the first, 4 to 10.

The Reds continued to show improved batting strength, but their pitching reserve was unable to hold down yesterday, the Phillies winning 7-1. After yielding two runs in the second, Jim Elliott held the Phillies in check until the seventh, when four hits and two passed betwixt five runs and settled the issue. Barnes replaced him.

The Brooklyn Dodgers, who scored twenty runs at Philadelphia on Sunday against the Phillies, were held down yesterday, the Phillies winning 7-1. After yielding two runs in the second, Jim Elliott held the Phillies in check until the seventh, when four hits and two passed betwixt five runs and settled the issue. Barnes replaced him.

LAILA

A Tale of the Days of Christ, by John Newport
(Copyright, 1926, by Eugene MacLean)

Two arrows struck him, one upon his forehead, the other upon his shoulder. The shaft fastened on his forehead. He snatched it out, felt with his forefinger, and learned that the arrow had struck his forehead. The enemy now approached cautiously. Their bows were of no service, for Antonius lay on the far side of the jutting rocks. They handed the weapons to their slaves, and came with long knives, drawn from sheaths that lay under their left arms. Antonius, watching around the corner, withdrew his head. Taking his sword in his left hand—his right held against the cliff—he held the blade aloft and ready.

CHAPTER LIII

The nearest Bowman's back was toward him. Others of the guard were clustered together as closely as they could manage, engaged in a parley. One of the guards saw Antonius's helmet at the edge of the rock, and he tried an arrow. The soldier drew back.

Further scouting was too perilous a venture. He settled himself to wait. The full continued. Far above, at the top of the distant precipice, the soldier could see men from Herod's army, moving as if in search of a route down which they might descend.

They were too far away for their arrows to reach Antonius. He waved at them until they at last took notice. They brandished their swords at him, threateningly, Antonius smiled.

It had been two days since he had eaten, and he was faintly hungry. He placed his mouth to the outermost rim of the sheltering rock, he called to the archers of the other side.

"Here! You soldiers of Herod!" After an instant, there came an answer. "Do you wish to surrender?"

"Surrender?" he called. "No! I want to eat. Have you any tender lamb's flesh, or perhaps a roasted bird?"

There was no reply, but an angry tumult of voices arose, that echoed against the opposite wall of the ravine.

Antonius, grinning, dipped his face into a puddle and drank deeply. His appetite eased by the draught, he snuffed his extra cloak behind his head, and leaned against the rough angle of the path.

Once or twice he yawned and stretched. His sleep the night before had been too brief, and his days had been busy ones.

He rubbed his hurt shoulder, and expected the deep scratch on the calf of his leg. These wounds were not serious, and he let them go without troubling to bind them.

The delay in further attack grew rhesome. He took off his helmet, after a struggle with the rain-soaked leather thong that fastened it, and held it out on the tip of his sword.

A sharp clang, and a jerk upon his sword, told him that the bowmen were alert.

He put on his helmet again, and renewed the edge of his sword-blade. The dent made by Omar's arrow was so deep to be filed away against the stone he used, but with satisfaction is noted that the weapon still was in good shape.

He lifted his voice again. "You archers there!" he called. "They did not answer, but a quick glance on the other side told him that they listened."

"If you're going to fight, come on—I'm becoming weary with waiting," he informed them.

A moment later, a brawny arm, holding a spear, appeared around the corner, and made a savage lunge at him. The arm was withdrawn too quickly for Antonius to strike it, but he was not hurt.

Letter Tells of Wonderful Relief After Taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound

Coniston, Ontario.—"After a severe operation and a three weeks' stay in a hospital I returned home very weak that I was unable to move a chair. For four months I was almost frantic with pains and suffering until I thought sure there could not be any help for me. I had very severe pains in my left side and suffered agony every month. One day when I was not able to get up my mother begged me to try your medicine. My husband got me a bottle of Vegetable Compound at once and I took it. I started a second bottle, and to my surprise and joy the pains in my side left me completely and I am able to do all my work without help. I am a farmer's wife, so you see I can't be idle long. In all, I have taken six bottles of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, five boxes of the Compound Tablets, two bottles of Lydia E. Pinkham's Blood Medicine, and have also used the Sanative Wash."—Mrs. L. LAJEUNESSE, Box 103, Coniston, Ontario.

They climbed into the funny boat.

and not wear them! Naughty!" and she playfully tapped his pink nose.

"Wear what?" asked Uncle Wiggly, innocent like.

"Your rubbers!" answered his wife. "It is raining. I don't mind you going out in the rain, but you must at least wear your rubbers. I see you have an umbrella, but where are your rubbers?"

"Oh, I can't get them on for them!" "Yes, it is! Now you put them on at once or you can't go out! Ha! Ha! I caught you!" and Mrs. Longears laughed again.

Uncle Wiggly looked sort of ashamed like and he blushed behind his ears. But he put on his rubbers though he didn't like to wear his sword-blade knocked the spear rattling into the ravine. "You can't strike me if you can't see me," he mocked. "Come around in view—I'm waiting."

The voices on the other side recommenced. Antonius could make out the sharp, authoritative voice of an officer. The voices stilled. Warily, the soldier made ready for another attack, but none came.

After an interval he dropped his sword again.

The rain was falling now in gusts. At one moment it would cease altogether. Then it would come in torrents, followed in turn by another lull.

As one blinding storm passed, Antonius saw, from the corner of his eye, a man running from the underbrush behind him.

An instant later he recognized the Arabian who had carried away the chief. The man carried two spears under his arm, and a collection of javelins. The tribesman placed his hands over his own abdomen, which he drew into a deep hollow.

"I take it that you and the chief have won so far," commented Antonius. He pointed to the implements of war the man had brought and nodded approval. Then he indicated his mouth, and tapped his stomach.

The tribesman placed his hands over his own abdomen, which he drew into a deep hollow.

"That means, I suppose, that you haven't had anything to eat, either," Antonius said. "All right. Here, before you go—"

He lifted one of the javelins, and made the gesture of throwing it around the angle of the path, at Herod's men. The Arabian smiled, bobbed his head with vigor, and picked up, not only the javelin, but a knife, which he placed between his teeth, and one of the spare swords.

With his left arm he hurried the dart, and with incredible quickness, followed after it himself, agilely rounding the shoulder of stone.

Antonius could hear the yell of amazement, then a quick cry, and a hub-bub of orders.

Before he could get himself into position to see what was happening, the Arab was back, laughing. The man poised himself a moment, ready to meet a counter-attack. None came, and presently he turned to the soldier, holding up two fingers, and exhibiting the blade of his sword.

"Eight! Nine!" counted Antonius, and smiled warm approval of the tribesman's daring.

He motioned for the man to return to his master. The Arabian obeyed, and trotted away, turning before he entered the thicket to bow deeply in farewell.

"With a hundred of those fellows, I'd take Herod prisoner myself," mused Antonius. "Or perhaps he's king of Arabia. Oh, well." He sighed. The immediate prospect was not bright, and he was very hungry.

No sound at all came from the farther side of the turn. Far above, Antonius could see men standing on the brow of the cliff, evidently watching, but there was no sign that they had found a way to clamber down.

ELLA CINDERS—A Little Luck

Copyright, 1927, by McClure Newspaper Syndicate

(By Howard H. Garis)

"Tut! Tut! None of that, if you please! No you don't! Naughty! Naughty!"

Mrs. Longears, the jolly old rabbit lady caught hold of Uncle Wiggly as he was hopping out of the front door of his hollow stump bungalow one morning to go adventuring.

"Why, what's the matter?" asked the bunny, his pink nose twinkling sort of surprised and indignant like.

"If you want me to go to the store for you, my dear, before I go adventuring, why—"

"Now, none of that!" laughed his wife. "You know why I caught you! You know you were trying to slip out without them before his wife saw him. However, she was too clever.

"I don't like rubbers. They make my paws too hot. But I suppose I must please my wife," thought Mr. Longears as she shuffled along in the rain. "As soon as the sun shines I'll take them off."

Silting along in the rain, Uncle Wiggly looked for an adventure, but he could not seem to find any until, all of a sudden, he hopped past a little house out in front of which some little frog children were playing. They were cousins to Bully and Bewley No Tail, the croaking frog boys.

"You seem to be having fun, my dears," said Uncle Wiggly to the two little girls and two little green frog boys, who were playing hop scotch in the rain.

"We are having some fun," admitted one of the boys.

"But we could have a lot more fun if we had a boat to paddle in the puddles," said another boy. Then they all looked at Uncle Wiggly's feet and the larger girl frog croaked:

"If he would let us take one of them we could make a fine boat of it."

"One of what?" asked Uncle Wiggly.

"One of your rubbers, if you please," went on Spot, which was the girl's name. "Please let us have one and we'll make believe it is a boat and we'll go sailing in it. Then we'll have lots of fun!"

"Now if there was one thing Uncle Wiggly always did, it was to try to please the children. So, without another word, he took off his left rubber and gave it to the frogs, who thanked him most kindly.

"I'm going to be captain!" cried one of the boys.

"I'll steer the rubber boat!" croaked the other.

"We'll be passengers!" laughed the frog girls.

They pushed Uncle Wiggly's rubber to the edge of a big puddle of rain-water and the frog captain cried: "All aboard!" Then they climbed into the funny boat and the boys shoved it along with sticks while Uncle Wiggly laughed to see the fun they were having.

"Well, this is a small adventure," said Mr. Longears. "I'll walk along until I have another." So he walked along, but on account of having a rubber on one paw and none on the other, he had to go sort of hippity, hopity like. "This doesn't look at all stylish," thought the rabbit. "I am bobbing up and down like a cork on a fish line. I wonder if I could lose this other rubber?"

He looked slyly around until he saw a place where there was a lot of sticky, gooey mud. Stepping into this with the paw on which was the one remaining rubber, Uncle Wiggly waited a moment. Then when he lifted his leg up the rubber stuck in the mud and he had none left.

"Ha! Ha!" laughed the funny rabbit gentleman. "I lost my rubber!" But he didn't seem to mind it in the least. Then he hopped on through the rain without any rubbers at all, and when he got back home his wife asked him: "Wiggly, where are your rubbers?"

"Well," he slowly answered, as he twinkled his pink nose, "I lost one and as the other was of no use to me I let some little frogs have it to play boat with, my dear!"

"Oh, you are hopeless!" sighed his wife, kissing him. "But you were kind to the frogs, so I'll forgive you!" And it wasn't until a week later that she heard the true story of what had happened.

Of course, I'm not saying Mr. Longears did right. Far from it! And I hope you don't do such things with your rubbers. But if the clothespin will stop pinching the condensed milk so it can go to the movies with the rice pudding, I'll tell you next about Uncle Wiggly's golf ball.

FISH PATROL MEN GROSSLY NEGLIGENT

Commissioner David McKenzie's Findings Published; He is Criticized

Vancouver, May 24.—David McKenzie, the special commissioner who held an investigation into alleged breaches of fishing regulations at Smith's Inlet, expressed incredulity Monday at the suggestion in an Ottawa dispatch that departmental officials are criticizing his report on the ground that he did not investigate similar conditions at other parts of the coast.

His commission was limited to the Smith's Inlet waters, he said, and he would have had no power to summon witnesses with reference to any other locality.

The possibility of further investigation he conceded, as he had heard that recommendations had gone to Ottawa before his own inquiry closed suggesting that the "scope" might be broadened.

NOT CONSIDERED YET

The report made by Mr. McKenzie has not yet been laid before the Minister, Ottawa dispatches say, as the Minister has been out of town since its arrival. The report was published Monday.

The commissioner found:

1. That there was in 1926 considerable illegal fishing in Smith's Inlet.
2. That it was impossible for local fishery officials to be ignorant of this fact, but on receipt of the first intimation of these irregularities by the chief inspector immediate steps were taken to remedy the situation.

Commissioner McKenzie reported that the "scope" was grossly negligent or "worse." He mentions that Fred Christensen has already pleaded guilty to accepting a bribe and that Morris M. Williams will come up for trial at the Fall session.

ONLY ONE CASE

Only one incident was proved, he said, indicating that the canneries were aware of the illegal fishing and that on occasion he found that a small quantity of salmon was canned by one company when the manager and foreman were aware that it had been caught during the weekly closed period.

"There would appear to be good reason to feel that the canneries concerned were not the only ones involved, and in my opinion it would be unfair to take drastic action in this case unless it can be definitely proved that the accepting and canning of illegally caught fish was a common practice, and unless the canneries are equally guilty can be connected with the case, it would be unfair that one firm should be punished and other probably equally guilty escape," said the report.

Concluding, the commissioner recommends that officers of the R.C.M.P. be employed as patrol officers, on the ground of efficiency and economy, and suggests that seaplanes would greatly assist in detecting illegal fishing in secluded waters.

DANGER IN CHINA WAS EXAGGERATED

U.S. Marine Believes Threat of War With Foreigners a Myth

Telling of the preparations which had been made in Shanghai to meet all emergencies, Lieutenant R. T. Presnell, of the United States Marine Corps, who arrived here this morning aboard the S. S. President Jefferson, stated that he thought these were made with a fear of a danger which was magnified. Lieut. Presnell is on his way to Quantico, Virginia, where the crack marksmen of the United States army will enter elimination contests to decide the annual national tournaments held in Ohio. Lieutenant Presnell is one of the finest shots in the Marine Corps.

"Not a single marine was ever fired at by the Chinese, all the time we were in Shanghai," said Lieut. Presnell. "Some of the British soldiers got into trouble with guerrilla fighters. But they shot back and soon stopped that sort of thing."

The officer paid a tribute to the British soldiers who are stationed in the Oriental city. They had been subjected to a strain which would have tried the patience of Job, he declared. But they had obeyed their orders implicitly, and had held the fire which might have precipitated serious trouble.

Only when they were actually fired upon did the British reply. And their firing was sufficiently effective to put a stop to Chinese guerrilla tactics in complete and thorough fashion.

THINKS U. S. BEST

Lieut. Presnell has a great respect for British marksmen, but he believes that the best which the United States can produce could outshoot the finest of the British men.

"We have never actually come into competition with the British rifle men," said the marine, "but when we were in Shanghai we were trying to arrange a contest with the Coldstream Guards and the Buffs and ourselves. We had a little practice on the Blaisie range, which are slightly different from ours."

The international competition in Shanghai never materialized, for there was a threat of more serious need for marksmanship, and the soldiers forgot all about their rivalry in watching front page in stories carried on the front page of the local press, and served to create a wrong impression of the Chinese situation. It was grave, he said, in a commercial way, but he did not think that there had ever been a threat of active warfare between Chinese and foreign troops.

What fighting there had been, he said, was by guerrilla fighters. They were not the Chinese army, although they were of the Nationalist party, he believed.

Lieut. Presnell will go back to China just before the opening of his rifle and revolver firing in competition with other crack marksmen.

Reopening of the search for the steamship Governor, which sank in Puget Sound, April 1, 1921, after being rammed by the West Hartland, is promised with the announcement of Captain H. Peterson, master of the tug Roosevelt, that he believes he has located the craft for which search was abandoned several years ago.

The cable was cut so cleanly that Peterson is certain it was cut by steel, which he believes to be part of the ill-fated Governor.

These veteran railway men associated with that notable event were present to receive the congratulations of their fellow citizens on the fortieth anniversary, a circumstance which gave added interest to the celebration.

On behalf of the Canadian Club I welcome the members of the C.P.R. and the train crew and other officials who arrived on that train. It is not forgetful also the great men who conceived the idea of this transcontinental railway, such men as Donald Smith, George Stephen, John A. Macdonald and others who had the vision which, if they were alive to-day, they would see realized as the fruit of their great enterprise."

In expressing his appreciation of being present at this historic occasion Sir Eme said that Canada's enormous increase in wealth and prosperity must be largely attributed to the men who brought the great C.P.R. enterprise to a successful conclusion.

"Your Governor commented to me the other day that Canada was now relatively in the same position as the United States was forty or fifty years ago," he said. "Canada has really begun to find her feet from every point of view. There is no reason that the immense development which has taken place in this short space of time should not continue until in a generation or two we may find this country rivaling the United States. That is what we hope for and I am particularly glad to address the Canadian Club of Vancouver because these clubs do so much to foster pride in this great country among all your citizens from Atlantic to Pacific."

CELEBRATE ARRIVAL OF C.P.R. ON COAST

At Dinner Held by Canadian Club in Vancouver, Pioneers Are Honored

Vancouver, May 24.—Fully 500 of Vancouver's leading citizens of to-day joined with the Canadian Club yesterday to do honor to a group of men who forty years ago were the central figures in one of the great historic events associated with the birth of this city.

They were the train crew and officials of the Canadian Pacific Railway who brought into Vancouver the transcontinental passenger train on May 23, 1887.

Almost a score of the railway men associated with that notable event were present to receive the congratulations of their fellow citizens on the fortieth anniversary, a circumstance which gave added interest to the celebration.

DAVID THOMPSON MONUMENT SET UP

Montreal, May 24.—A monument in honor of David Thompson, explorer of the Northwest and British Columbia, was unveiled at his grave in the Mount Royal cemetery here yesterday by Sir Frederick Williams-Taylor.

The monument was erected through the efforts of the Canadian Historical Association.

The inscription reads: "David Thompson, 1770-1857. To the memory of the greatest of Canadian explorers, who for thirty-four years explored and mapped out the main travel routes between the St. Lawrence and the Pacific."

On Wednesday evening at half past seven in the auditorium of St. Ann's Academy a contest in Canadian History will be held, when twelve pupils, four from each of the sixth, seventh and eighth grades, will compete for the two prizes offered by the Catholic Women's League, and a special prize for the entrance class, donated by Sister Superior. This contest has been arranged particularly to commemorate Jubilee Confederation year, and there will be a short patriotic programme also during the evening.

AVIATOR KILLED

Muskegon, Mich., May 24.—Milo Kestner, thirty-three, aviator and stunt flyer, plunged 4,000 feet to his death here yesterday in full view of his sixty-four-year-old mother and a large crowd of spectators. Webster lost his grip on his parachute bar as the big bag opened. Mrs. Webster fell unconscious much faster than before.

Pyorrhea's victims are 4 out of 5

A ruthless enemy that gives no quarter is Pyorrhea. Its poisons sweep through the system, undermining health and often causing such serious diseases as rheumatism and neuritis, appendicitis, ulcers, stomach troubles and nervousness.

Four out of five past 40, and thousands younger, pay this heavy toll. But you need not fear these uneven odds.

Go to your dentist at least twice a year. And start using Forhan's for the gums, today. This dentifrice, the formula of R. J. Forhan, D. D. S., prevents Pyorrhea or checks its course.

It keeps gum tissue firm and healthy. It protects teeth and keeps them white. Use Forhan's regularly, morning and night. Teach your children this good habit.

Forhan's contains Forhan's Pyorrhea Liquid used by dentists everywhere. It is health-insurance. At all drug stores—in tubes, 35c and 60c.

Western Civilization To Reach Its Highest Development In This Pacific Northwest Area

New York, May 24—In a remarkable interview published as the feature article of The American Magazine for June, Dr. J. Russell Smith, internationally known economic geologist, predicts that North American civilization will reach its highest point in the Pacific Northwest area embracing Oregon, Washington and the southern part of British Columbia.

"The particular section to which I refer consists roughly of 50 by 400 miles on the Pacific Coast of Oregon and Washington, in the Puget Sound-Willamette River Valley region, where are the cities of Seattle, Portland, Tacoma, Everett, Bellingham and a few others," Dr. Smith says. "A portion of British Columbia lies in the district, including Vancouver and Victoria."

Climate, strategic trade situation, hydro-electric power and agricultural resources are given as the foundation factors of the forecast by Dr. Smith.

He makes his prediction as the climax to his interview on "What Is Going to Happen to America?" in which he analyzes the economic and industrial positions of the various parts of the continent. At the beginning of the century, Dr. Smith was the expert on the Isthmian Canal Commission, created by President McKinley, to determine whether the Nicaragua or the Panama route offered greater economic advantages. He is now professor of Economic Geography in Columbia University and is the author of a number of celebrated textbooks and authoritative works.

SEES BIG POPULATION RISE

In his interview, Dr. Smith foresees a dangerous influx cityward during the next decades, which, unadjusted, will eventually lower the standard of living. He predicts the rise of numerous small towns and the decline of the big city. He foresees the rise of a "new New England," suggests how the South may save itself, and why the peak of American civilization will be reached not in the East, but in the great Pacific Northwest.

"The population of this Northwest area is now about a million," Dr. Smith goes on. "It will almost certainly increase to five or six, perhaps, ten millions. A thriving land of cities in the midst of dairy farms and a rich grassland agriculture, such as we find in the best parts of England and Belgium."

"In this region, I expect American civilization in many ways to reach its maximum. Yes, I expect it will outstrip New York, overhauling the advantage which the metropolis has had of an early start."

In the Northwest of which I speak, I anticipate that man for man, Americans eventually will realize their greatest achievement, almost certainly their greatest physical achievement, perhaps also their highest mental achievement, in science, literature and the arts. "To Dr. Ellsworth Huntington we are indebted for epoch-making observations in the study of the part that climate plays in the making of civilization. If the theory, presented in his great work 'Civilization and Climate,' were at variance with everyday experience we might look at it askance; but the experience of common men, and the history of many countries, seem to confirm his most important conclusions."

"Dr. Huntington's main conclusion, in brief, is this: a man feels more inclined to be active, and will do more physical work, at a temperature of about sixty degrees (fifty-five to sixty degrees) than when it is colder or warmer. He also states that man does his best brain work when the outdoor temperature is about forty degrees. Study the temperature charts of Puget Sound and you will be struck by the fact that in winter the temperature there is right for the maximum of mental activity; in summer it is right for the maximum of physical activity!"

CLIMATIC ADVANTAGE HERE

"Another of Dr. Huntington's conclusions is that man needs a moist climate to perform at his best—and the climate here is moist. Also, it is changeable. And changes in temperature wake men up, energize them, and make them want to do things."

"To be sure, there are numerous reasons apart from the climate that lead one to predict a unified future for this part of the country. It is a splendid land for agriculture. It is accessible for trade. The Panama Canal offers transportation facilities. As to mechanical energy, the Cascades and the Coast Range, along with the Rockies, give the cities between Portland and Vancouver access to many millions of horse-power of hydro-electric energy. Nowhere in Europe, nor in the eastern United States, is there any location for water-power resource that rivals it."

SEES FOOD CHANGE

Dr. Smith predicts that the food of future generations will be raised less from grain crops, and more from tree crops, from food-producing trees yet to be developed.

"The loss of land by needless and useless soil erosion is one of the greatest material injuries that man is doing to his own future," he continues. "He plants a hillside, grows crops of corn, cotton or tobacco, and after a very few years the field is ruined. In this way we have already ruined the possible homesites of millions of men."

"We do this because we grow crops for which the land must be ploughed, instead of crops that can live and thrive without ploughing—tree crops. By an accident of history, agriculture started with annual plants, grasses, wheat, rice, corn and so on, instead of with trees—date, olive, walnut and acorn. People have for ages eaten wild acorns and walnuts as well as the seeds of wild grasses. We need a whole series of new crop trees making food for men and food for livestock, and at the same time holding soil on the hills with their roots."

CHANCE FOR ANOTHER BUREAU

"America is rich in native trees of great promise waiting to be improved: walnuts, pecans, hickory nuts, pine nuts, hazelnuts, butternuts, beechnuts. More important than these are the trees that may feed animals. "The acorn-yielding oak may be made to rival corn as pig feed and cow feed. The honey-locust bean may rival wheat, bran and cotton seed as food for the dairy cow. The persimmon is one of the most nutritious fruits grown in the United States, and it drops its fruit for weeks and months, ready for the pigs and turkeys to eat. "A million dollars invested during the next twenty years in creative research and experiments would disclose the technique for a tree-crop agriculture. The creations and discoveries that would be made would be worth many millions the succeeding twenty years and billions after that. There is an opportunity for some person to create a world-famous institution and render invaluable service to the American people and to the world at large."

REGIMENT'S HISTORY CONTAINED IN BOOK

Day-by-day Itinerary of Montreal Battalion Written by R. C. Fetherstonhaugh

Scattered all over the Dominion of Canada are men who served overseas in the 14th Battalion Royal Montreal Regiment, C.E.F. The demands of civil occupations, time, and distances have somewhat weakened the links of comradeship that were forged in the mud and blood of Flanders, but an opportunity is now presented for recalling the memories of those glorious, tragic days and renewing old friendships. There is now available a history of the gallant 14th, such as few regiments can boast of. A day-by-day itinerary, showing every town where the battalion billeted overnight, as well as every battle and every tour, is included in this historic review, together with complete lists of the honours and awards made to the regiment, of commissions granted in the C.E.F. or the Imperial Army, as well as the roll of those who gave their lives for the Empire in the great struggle.

The history has been in course of preparation for the past eighteen months. It has been written by R. C. Fetherstonhaugh of Montreal, in collaboration with the Regimental History Committee, under the chairmanship of Lieut.-Col. C. B. Price, D.S.O., D.C.M., 425 Metcalfe Avenue, Westmount, P.Q. In addition to the story of the battalion's work from 1914-1925, the history also contains a foreword by General Turner, twenty-one pages of illustrations and five maps. The whole makes a volume that will be prized by all interested in the Royal Montreal, and the hundreds who passed through its ranks during the war and since. The committee are desirous of getting in touch with all ex-members of the 14th Battalion, and orders for the history are now being received by Colonel Price.

Members of 88th Battalion Gather at Reunion Dinner

In commemoration of the day on which they sailed from Victoria for duty overseas, 116 former members of the 88th Battalion Victoria Fusiliers gathered for a reunion dinner at the Chamber of Commerce last night. Promptly at 8 o'clock Battery Sergeant-Major Ernie Maynard called the roll following which "Lights Out" was sounded. A singing of the regimental song followed, and then the evening was brought to a close by the singing of the National Anthem.

To-day the sergeant-major placed flowers on the war memorial at the Parliament Buildings.

PARISHIONERS HONOR FATHER SCHEELAN

New Touring Car is Among Surprise Gifts

Brentwood, May 24 — A very happy event took place on Sunday afternoon at the home of Mr. L. and the Misses Hagan, when over a hundred parishioners and friends gathered to celebrate the twenty-fifth anniversary of Rev. Father E. M. Scheelan's entry into the priesthood. Twenty-three of these years had been spent in the parishes of Vancouver Island. In the earlier years Trounalen was the headquarters and Cobble Hill and Shawinigan in one direction to Westholme Crofton and Chemainus in the other.

They were traveled most of the way of the church carried on with untiring zeal, energy and devotion. Then came the move to Saanich and Sidney parishes, which also included the Gulf Islands, a very large parish ministered to with the same untiring zeal and devotion. The large gathering showed the love and esteem in which Father Scheelan is held by his parishioners, both past and present, for besides the many from the city and surrounding districts, twenty made the trip from Duncan to be present at the reception. Among these were Rev. Father F. J. Geurts of Kuper Island, and Father F. H. Lemmens of Chemainus.

An address expressing the appreciation and love of Vancouver Island friends was read by L. Hagan at the conclusion of which a beautiful bouquet was presented by Mary Lovick. A card bearing good wishes by Daphne Schwartz and a purse by little Edgar Lovick. A silver tape was then handed to Father Scheelan which led to the driveway where a new touring car which had been driven to the door by Miss Holly Lacoursier, stood waiting for his acceptance. Although completely taken by surprise, Father Scheelan made a most feeling reply in thanking them for this wonderful token of their love and good feeling.

Rev. Father Francis, who played a prominent part in organizing the surprise gift, was able to be present and was the recipient of an expression of best wishes for his health and a basket of flowers, presented by Mary Lovick. A beautiful cake, bearing the dates 1902 to 1927 centred a table decorated in mauve and white lilacs, which almost decorated the living room in which the presentation took place. Refreshments were served later in the afternoon by the Misses Hagan, assisted by the ladies of the parish, and a pleasant time followed, in which Rev. Father Scheelan personally received the good wishes of those present.

King "You"

YOU live better than any of the kings of old. Where you switch on the electric light, he had a smoky torch. You go to bed on springs—his couch rested on planks. A few overworked minstrels were the best he could get together when he wanted music. You turn a dial and a great symphony fills the room. And today, a thin copper wire carries more power than his sceptre ever boasted.

You have a thousand kingly comforts that the emperors of distant days never knew. To what magic power should you offer thanks? Turn the pages of this paper to the advertisements!
